Sent via email: foia@sirillp.com; gpalmer@sirillp.com

Dear Mr. Siri:

This letter is in response to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request submitted to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) on behalf of your client, the Informed Consent Action Network (ICAN). OMB assigned this FOIA request tracking number 2021-420.

Pursuant to our email exchange on November 4, 2021, about the scope of your request, OMB is making its eighth rolling production. Specifically, OMB has reviewed an additional 302 potentially responsive records. Of the 302 documents reviewed this past month, OMB determined that 162 documents are responsive to your FOIA request. OMB is releasing all 162 documents with partial redactions. The 162 documents being released in part include redactions made pursuant to FOIA Exemption 6, 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(6). Exemption 6 protects against disclosure of information that would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. We have reviewed the information protected by this exemption under a presumption of openness, but have determined that it is reasonably foreseeable that disclosure of the information would harm an interest protected by the exemption.

OMB will continue to process potentially responsive records and will follow up with an additional rolling production by September 30, 2022, with successive productions on an approximately monthly cadence thereafter.

Sincerely,

Dionne Hardy
FOIA Officer

Vint,

I hope you are doing well.

On behalf of the IPv6 task force, thank you for agreeing to be the closing keynote at the GSA IPv6 Summit. I know that Ralph Wallace, from ACT-IAC, had reached out – and we are excited that you have accepted.

Tom Santucci, cc'd, is coordinating the event from the GSA side. I know he will be going through some normal questions (slides/content) that GSA will like to review.

I'm hoping that you can emphasize the importance of transforming to IPv6 and your overarching support of the initiative.

Subject: Hybrid ELC meeting

Teammates – thanks so much for taking the time for the important discussion this morning on our Hybrid ELC plans. Here's a quick summary of the things we discussed:

- For planning purposes, we'll target 150 government in-person attendees and 400 industry attendees; remaining flexible to increase industry participation if we don't get to 150 government attendees.
- The staff will work some more on criteria for industry attendance, setting aside requisite registrations for EC members, sponsors, planning committee, etc., and creating ground rules to ensure equitable availability of tickets for member companies.
- We'll ask government speakers to speak/attend in-person, keeping in reserve the option for virtual speakers to those situations where it would help secure a big name speaker or someone from outside of the DC area.
- We'll work to rapidly identify some "trailblazer" government attendees and speakers to help drive/promote government attendance/participation
- We'll try to identify a government person from several key agencies who can serve as a "barometer" on the changing rules for government travel/in-person participation at that agency.
- We'll start advertising in-person attendance first, reserving virtual registrations for later, to encourage in-person registrations, and having the virtual option be for overflow and those who are unable or unwilling to participate in-person (or are outside of the DC area).
- We'll revise registration rates to reflect our new business model of lowering registration prices to encourage greater attendance and keeping virtual rates almost as high as in-person rates to avoid too many people opting for virtual participation. We'll fine tune the numbers, but we discussed notionally $395 for government in-person and $350 for government virtual; $895 for industry in-person and $795 for industry virtual

- We'll keep in our "hip pocket" for now some additional virtual collaboration options, like "watch parties," etc., and introduce those ideas later after we've secured the necessary in-person attendance. We will make exceptions for our geographic expansion areas to encourage their virtual participation.
- We'll also use our Goal 1 group to develop some guiding principles coming out of ELC planning that can be used for future hybrid events and for determining whether a specific event should be virtual, in-person only or hybrid.

We also agreed to meet again in a month to continue this discussion. I'll send an invite for Thursday 6/24.

Thanks again,

Dave

Hi All,

We thought it would be helpful to share a quick update on our product plans to help users get more information on COVID-19 vaccines:

We're making good progress toward our ability to launch a module by the end of this week that will include the following:

"Everyone 12 years of age and older is now eligible to get a COVID-19 vaccination. Find an appointment on vaccines.gov. Call 1-800-232-0233 for more information."

This messaging fits within our current UI parameters and reflects the latest CDC messaging and the vaccines.gov link will take users to the vaccines.gov website. Clicking on the hotline number will open the option to call the hotline on a mobile phone. And for us this is the fastest route to get this information out to users.

At the same time, we plan to continue to improve the user experience, add additional information, and iterate the hotline module shortly after the initial launch (including evaluating how to integrate text messaging).

We hope that gives you a sense of updates on our progress to continue to respond to evolving user needs. Feel free to let us know if you have any questions.

Thanks,
Stanley

We continue to update our products and campaigns to meet the most relevant user needs as the US vaccine landscape evolves, especially given the CDC’s recently expanded COVID-19 vaccine eligibility to everyone ages 12+. With that in mind, we have been working with our product teams on a few updates to our COVID-19 Vaccines Search experience to help users find the most relevant vaccine resources including:

“Getting the Vaccine” - highlighting Vaccines.gov and the hotline
Vaccines & Kids - highlighting the latest CDC guidance for children

We expect to launch and ramp the vaccines.gov and hotline updates as soon as possible. In the meantime, we will continue to promote vaccine confidence campaigns to address vaccine hesitancy. The quick win-

As I noted, searching the major keywords related to vaccination (vaccine, vaccines, covid vaccine, etc) does not currently display and quick info for who and how to get vaccinated, but does return a "who can get vaccinated now" link which varies by state. We'd recommend removing that link (since it no longer varies by state, so the information can be surfaced directly) and adding a knowledge graph infobox at the top of the search results page with the following information:

Getting the COVID-19 Vaccine

Everyone age 12 and older living in the United States can get a COVID-19 vaccine free of charge, regardless of immigration status or health insurance.

Find COVID-19 vaccines near you:

Hi All,

Thanks for your willingness to connect today. Our team is happy to touch base at 5pm ET.

We are also excited to share that the new Search feature that we previewed to you on Tuesday that contains the vaccines.gov hotline launched this morning at 5 am (screenshot below) this morning and is currently rolling out to all users. Once fully ramped, you can see it by searching terms like "covid-19 vaccine near me"

As discussed, we will continue to improve the user experience, and we look forward to connecting today.

Thanks,

Hi Stanley and Jan,

Thank you again for your help.

1. I'm attaching a spreadsheet with common search terms where adding this knowledge graph might be valuable.
2. Also, per our conversation on the call, in the common questions section – the question "Where can I get the COVID-19 vaccine" is something that could be easily updated before the weekend. Currently it links to a page on the CDC that is not ideal for someone who is looking for where to get vaccinated. My ideal language would probably read something like:

"There are more than 75,000 places to get a COVID-19 vaccine in the U.S., and 90% of Americans have a vaccine site within 5 miles—visit vaccines.gov to find vaccines near you."

But I think you pull this language from existing pages. I can talk to our team about updating the language itself, but just below the existing language it reads:

Find a COVID-19 Vaccine: Search vaccines.gov, text your ZIP code to 438829, or call 1-800-232-0233 to find locations near you.

My sense is that this language would be far more useful to people who have that question. Please let me know what our team can do to support that change.

With this note I wanted to confirm that we would love you, Simcha, Michael and Lashaunda (SP?) to help our Google designers here the USG perspective on why being customer centric is critical, what good lessons learned and advice around being customer champions can be gleaned from public sector.

We can do this live or recorded, and I imagine just a casual Q&A, (Can give questions in advance) if we moderate or happy to have you moderate the conversation. Would love to schedule before end of July if you were all available, usually the 9am-noon EST window is a great time.

It is so critical that our work is really grounded in the user and would love your insights.

Let me know if this sounds good and how I can be helpful to make this happen!

Hi All,

Thanks for your willingness to connect today. Our team is happy to touch base at 5pm ET.

We are also excited to share that the new Search feature that we previewed to you on Tuesday that contains the vaccines.gov hotline launched this morning at 5 am (screenshot below) this morning and is currently rolling out to all users. Once fully ramped, you can see it by searching terms like "covid-19 vaccine near me"

As discussed, we will continue to improve the user experience, and we look forward to connecting today.

Thanks,
Stanley

Hi All,

We thought it would be helpful to share a quick update on our product plans to help users get more information on COVID-19 vaccines:

We're making good progress toward our ability to launch a module by the end of this week that will include the following:

"Everyone 12 years of age and older is now eligible to get a COVID-19 vaccination. Find an appointment on vaccines.gov. Call Ex 6 - (5 [REDACTED]) or more information."

This messaging fits within our current UI parameters and reflects the latest CDC messaging and the vaccines.gov link will take users to the vaccines.gov website.

Clicking on the hotline number will open the option to call the hotline on a mobile phone.

And for us this is the fastest route to get this information out to users.

At the same time, we plan to continue to improve the user experience, add additional information, and iterate the hotline module shortly after the initial launch (including evaluating how to integrate text messaging).

We hope that gives you a sense of updates on our progress to continue to respond to evolving user needs. Feel free to let us know if you have any questions.

Thanks,
Stanley

Hi Mina,

Thank you for sharing your feedback with us. Throughout the pandemic, Google has been collaborating closely with health authorities like the CDC to highlight authoritative information, tips, and vaccine safety content to combat misinformation. We have also launched several initiatives and product features across Search, YouTube, and Maps to promote vaccine confidence including:

- Highlighting vaccination locations in Google Search and Maps including a PSA to prompt Americans to "find COVID19 vaccine location near me" for the next two weeks.
- Creating our "Get the Facts" and "Get Back To What You Love" PSAs that launched in April already have over 250 US million views.
- Activating YouTube creators through a homepage takeover, creator "shorts" and free emojis to inspire young people to get vaccinated.
- Expanding our Google.org grants to 500 Community Based Organizations to set up vaccination sites and reach out to communities of color and rural populations through the CDC Foundation, Partners in Health, Team Rubicon, VaccineFinder, Ad Council, and UnidosUS.
- Broadening the reach of YouTube's PSA campaign. Our "Get Back To What You Love" PSAs will be promoted on YouTube, broadcast TV, radio, and paid social media aiming to reach 180M Americans (mostly 18-34 yrs) by the end of July, serving over 2.5B impressions.

We continue to update our products and campaigns to meet the most relevant user needs as the US vaccine landscape evolves, especially given the CDC's recently expanded COVID-19 vaccine eligibility to everyone ages 12+. With that in mind, we have been working with our product teams on a few updates to our COVID-19 Vaccines Search experience to help users find the most relevant vaccine resources including:

"Getting the Vaccine" - highlighting Vaccines.gov and the hotline
Vaccines & Kids - highlighting the latest CDC guidance for children

We expect to launch and ramp the vaccines.gov and hotline updates as soon as possible. In the meantime, we will continue to promote vaccine confidence campaigns to address vaccine hesitancy. Please let us know if you have any questions or would like to connect further about any of the updates above.

Thanks,
Stanley

Karen,
Thanks again for your time yesterday, really appreciate it. This will be critically helpful for the nationwide vaccination effort.
Per our discussion, wanted to flag both the urgent item for you that would be a clear and simple win here in writing because it's pretty straightforward, and then would also love to meet with your team/the appropriate folks to sort out other items which could further be improved (like you mentioned answers to the frequently searched questions, etc). Let us know the best way to arrange that discussion.

The quick win-

As I noted, searching the major keywords related to vaccination (vaccine, vaccines, covid vaccine, etc) does not currently display and quick info for who and how to get vaccinated, but does return a "who can get vaccinated now" link which varies by state. We'd recommend removing that link (since it no longer varies by state, so the information can be surfaced directly) and adding a knowledge graph infobox at the top of the search results page with the following information:

Getting the COVID-19 Vaccine

Everyone age 12 and older living in the United States can get a COVID-19 vaccine free of charge, regardless of immigration status or health insurance.

Find COVID-19 vaccines near you:

- Vaccines.gov
- Text your Zip Code to 438829
- Ex 6 - (5 U.S.C. Sec 552(b)(6))

[Alt contact info for Spanish]

- Vacunas.gov
- Text your Zip Code to 822862
- Ex 6 - (5 U.S.C. Sec 552(b)(6))

And again, would also love to connect with the team. Let us know next steps there.

Thanks again for this critical work!

Best,

Mina

1. I'm attaching a spreadsheet with common search terms where adding this knowledge graph might be valuable.
2. Also, per our conversation on the call, in the common questions section – the question “Where can I get the COVID-19 vaccine” is something that could be easily updated before the weekend. Currently it links to a page on the CDC that is not ideal for someone who is looking for where to get vaccinated. My ideal language would probably read something like:

“There are more than 75,000 places to get a COVID-19 vaccine in the U.S., and 90% of Americans have a vaccine site within 5 miles—visit vaccines.gov to find vaccines near you.”

But I think you pull this language from existing pages. I can talk to our team about updating the language itself, but just below the existing language it reads:

Find a COVID-19 Vaccine: Search vaccines.gov, text your ZIP code to 438829, or call Ex 6 - (5

Project Description:

Maximize outreach for ELC 2021 Adventures In Change Conference through connecting with public and private sector leaders who will register for the event through multi channel approaches. Experience of the virtual users. Enhance the customer experience for the virtual ELC Conference attendees.

Proposed Agenda:

- Actions Review
- Accomplishments / Updates
- Upcoming Activities
- Blockers

Let me know if you have any questions or conflicts.

Best,
Darryl

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,
Becca

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,
Becca

I think 7pm is a bit too late as well. If we could condense our setup to an hour – I think 6pm would be ok.

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,
Becca

Subject: [EXTERNAL] AFFIRM Leadership Awards - November 18, 2021

Good Afternoon,

The Mandarin Oriental just had an opening for November 18th for our Leadership Awards. Please reply if you see any conflicts with booking this date. If there are no conflicts, I will request a contract and get this locked in.

Thank you,
Becca

I agree, we either need a way to speed up the setup so we can start the event around 6 or look for other venues.

Will it take 2 hours to set up? Personally think 7-10 is too late. Group? If we can't do that date – what options remain?

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] AFFIRM Leadership Awards - November 18, 2021

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Hey Amazing Customer Centric Public Leaders! (Brian, Amira, Simchah and Daniel)

As mentioned before, I would love to confirm if we can get a time on the calendar for you all to share some insights and lessons learned around better customer engagement in government and public sector? This is for my Google tech designers who are designing for government.

We had our first session that kicked off our internal "Summer of Design" with Jen Pahlka (Who was amazing!)

I am thinking no more than 30 min maybe doing two events with a pair of you each event. There is no script, it is literally a "What I learned about driving customer centricity, maybe a few examples and any advice you have. This is internal only, no press, no recording, etc. It would be great if my designers could ask you a few questions based on your insights but we can eliminate the Q&A if you prefer.

I was hoping to do the first one the week of June 21st with Brian and Daniel and then the next one maybe 3 weeks later with Amira and Simchah?

Would you all be willing? Would love to lock it in. We can also pre-record them or do them individually if needed, totally flexible!

Thank you!
Alexis

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM

12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Good Afternoon,

The Mandarin Oriental just had an opening for November 18th for our Leadership Awards. Please reply if you see any conflicts with booking this date. If there are no conflicts, I will request a contract and get this locked in.

Thank you,
Becca

Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] AFFIRM Leadership Awards - November 18, 2021

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Meeting Level M4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

Good Afternoon,

The Mandarin Oriental just had an opening for November 18th for our Leadership Awards. Please reply if you see any conflicts with booking this date. If there are no conflicts, I will request a contract and get this locked in.

Thank you,
Becca

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

MEETING LEVEL 4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] AFFIRM Leadership Awards - November 18, 2021

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Meeting Level M4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Good Afternoon,

The Mandarin Oriental just had an opening for November 18th for our Leadership Awards. Please reply if you see any conflicts with booking this date. If there are no conflicts, I will request a contract and get this locked in.

Thank you,
Becca

Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] AFFIRM Leadership Awards - November 18, 2021

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Meeting Level M4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Hello all,

I would be happy to connect at 4pm EST today, but unfortunately Stanley has a conflict. We are also both available at 5pm EST today if you'd prefer.

We met yesterday with Josh's team and the HHS, CDC, FDA interagency group on COVID19 vaccination efforts. If helpful moving forward, we could add you both to that call or we would be happy to set up weekly/biweekly syncs separately with you as we know the next few weeks and months will be critical.

Hope you all saw our Google Search home page promotion today linking to President Biden and Dr. Fauci's recent conversations with YouTube Creators on COVID19 vaccines. We also can preview a few other things we have coming up next week.

Thanks,
Jan

Thanks Stanley!

Last week after our larger meeting Karen and I spoke about some additional items that we could explore, and recommended that we touch base this week and weekly, so that we can make sure to stay on the same page and see what you're planning. Can we make sure that gets set up? Any chance we could chat tomorrow afternoon/eod?

Best,
Mina

Hi Josh,

Thanks again for your time today and for following up with the spreadsheet. We've shared your feedback with our teams and look forward to continuing the conversation next week during our bi-weekly meeting with your team and the CDC/FDA. As discussed, we will continue to evolve our products to meet evolving user needs.

Enjoy the long weekend!

Hi Stanley and Jan,

Thank you again for your help.

1. I'm attaching a spreadsheet with common search terms where adding this knowledge graph might be valuable.
2. Also, per our conversation on the call, in the common questions section – the question “Where can I get the COVID-19 vaccine” is something that could be easily updated before the weekend. Currently it links to a page on the CDC that is not ideal for someone who is looking for where to get vaccinated. My ideal language would probably read something like:

“There are more than 75,000 places to get a COVID-19 vaccine in the U.S., and 90% of Americans have a vaccine site within 5 miles—visit vaccines.gov to find vaccines near you.”

But I think you pull this language from existing pages. I can talk to our team about updating the language itself, but just below the existing language it reads:

Find a COVID-19 Vaccine: Search vaccines.gov, text your ZIP code to 438829, or call 1-800-232-0233 to find locations near you.

My sense is that this language would be far more useful to people who have that question. Please let me know what our team can do to support that change.

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night

10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Meeting Level M4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Becca

Mark,

Per our conversation, I wanted to connect you to Lee and Behnaz at Google Cloud. They are on the public policy team here in DC and would be happy to provide points of contact who can chat about procurement best practices, auditing/logging, and monitoring/spend controls.

Behnaz and Lee – Mark Junda is a USDS digital services expert on the procurement team. He formerly bought cloud at the VA and is working on a project at USDS (with ACT-IAC) on consumption-based procurement best practices. He's chatting with different CSPs on how they structure contracts and how they help the CO/CORs on the government side with controls.

Will let you all take it from here.

Hey Amazing Customer Centric Public Leaders! (Brian, Amira, Simchah and Daniel)

As mentioned before, I would love to confirm if we can get a time on the calendar for you all to share some insights and lessons learned around better customer engagement in government and public sector? This is for my Google tech designers who are designing for government.

We had our first session that kicked off our internal "Summer of Design" with Jen Pahlka (Who was amazing!)

I am thinking no more than 30 min maybe doing two events with a pair of you each event. There is no script, it is literally a "What I learned about driving customer centricity, maybe a few examples and any advice you have. This is internal only, no press, no recording, etc. It would be great if my designers could ask you a few questions based on your insights but we can eliminate the Q&A if you prefer.

I was hoping to do the first one the week of June 21st with Brian and Daniel and then the next one maybe 3 weeks later with Amira and Simchah?

Would you all be willing? Would love to lock it in. We can also pre-record them or do them individually if needed, totally flexible!

Thank you!
Alexis

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Meeting Level M4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Becca

Vint, In preparation for the IPv6 Summit on June 16th, I added you as a Zoom panelist. You should have just received an email from ZoomGov on behalf of me. Use this link to join the practice and real sessions. This link is unique to you, so please do not share it.

Can we hold a practice session this week? Let me know what day/time works to make sure the technical aspects are working. Also, we're waiting on your high-level talking points.

Thanks so much,

Tom Santucci, cc'd, is coordinating the event from the GSA side. I know he will be going through some normal questions (slides/content) that GSA will like to review.

Sorry for my late reply - happy to do it! The week of June 21 would be great. The best windows for me right now are:

- 6/21 – after 4PM EST
- 6/23 – 1-3PM EST or after 4:30 EST
- 6/25 – 10-12:30PM EST or after 4:45 EST

Look forward to it!

Hey Amazing Customer Centric Public Leaders! (Brian, Amira, Simchah and Daniel)

As mentioned before, I would love to confirm if we can get a time on the calendar for you all to share some insights and lessons learned around better customer engagement in government and public sector? This is for my Google tech designers who are designing for government.

We had our first session that kicked off our internal "Summer of Design" with Jen Pahlka (Who was amazing!)

I am thinking no more than 30 min maybe doing two events with a pair of you each event. There is no script, it is literally a "What I learned about driving customer centricity, maybe a few examples and any advice you have. This is internal only, no press, no recording, etc. It would be great if my designers could ask you a few questions based on your insights but we can eliminate the Q&A if you prefer.

I was hoping to do the first one the week of June 21st with Brian and Daniel and then the next one maybe 3 weeks later with Amira and Simchah?

Would you all be willing? Would love to lock it in. We can also pre-record them or do them individually if needed, totally flexible!

Thank you!

Alexis

Would 4:30pm ET on Friday June 11th work for a practice session?

Tom,

Could you confirm the time of Vint's talk on the 16th? We had noted a 4pm start time, signing on 30 minutes prior. However, the zoom invite has a 12pm ET time.

Thanks,
Denise

Can we hold a practice session this week? Let me know what day/time works to make sure the technical aspects are working. Also, we're waiting on your high-level talking points.

Thanks so much,

Hello Vint, We have a jammed packed agenda and Q&As will be difficult to handle in a normal fashion. We will be monitoring the Q&As coming in and will respond either live, or most likely create a FAQ to be published after the session. It is your preference if you want to run long in your time slot to allow time to answer incoming questions.

Hope this helps.

Vint,

I hope you are doing well.

On behalf of the IPv6 task force, thank you for agreeing to be the closing keynote at the GSA IPv6 Summit. I know that Ralph Wallace, from ACT-IAC, had reached out – and we are excited that you have accepted.

Tom Santucci, cc'd, is coordinating the event from the GSA side. I know he will be going through some normal questions (slides/content) that GSA will like to review.

I'm hoping that you can emphasize the importance of transforming to IPv6 and your overarching support of the initiative.

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Meeting Level M4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental

5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Meeting Level M4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

Will it take 2 hours to set up? Personally think 7-10 is too late. Group? If we can't do that date – what options remain?

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Becca

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.

2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Meeting Level M4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

Happy Friday!

I wanted to send a quick update that I received a contract for the Marriott Marquis DC (venue we booked for 2020), and it's almost identical to our 2020 contract, but with only an $8,000 F&B minimum ($20,000 in 2020).

Here's a quick summary:

1. Wednesday, December 8, 2021 – potential for 11/17 if the other interested group does not commit.
2. 4th floor – Liberty Ballroom IJKL
3. F&B Minimum - $8,000
4. Waived Meeting Room Rental
5. 10% discount on AV – in-house only
6. (2) Comp Parking Passes
7. Discounted Valet Parking - $30/car
8. Discounted Bartender fees
9. Discounted guest rooms for $249+ tax/night
10. Upgrades to M-Club for $50/person/night
11. Should guests wish to place a gift inside each car that is valeted at the property fee of $4.00 per car will apply. – negotiated in 2020 for AFFIRM
12. Agreed to comp meeting space and discounted dinner for award selection dinner

Meeting Level M4

- Awards Ceremony
- VIP Cocktail
- Just in Case
- Sponsors

MEETING LEVEL 4

Ballroom - we will have 2 portions. This is taken in the 3rd portion, but you can see where it divides on the ceiling:

Foyer Space – we can brand the columns!

Let me know your thoughts and if you have any questions.

Thank you,
Becca

Good Morning,

I hope you all had a nice long weekend.

What the hotel didn't mention when they told me they had the availability, is that we can't get in to start setting up until 5:30pm. This will push the timeline 1-2 hours. Would you be open to a 7-10pm event?

Thank you,

[EXTERNAL] [update] Google's Covid19 vaccination tools for public health

To: "Hsiang, Mina K. EOP/OMB" [Ex 6 - (5 U.S.C. Sec 552(b)(6))], "Peck, Joshua (HHS/ASPA)" [Ex 6 - (5 U.S.C. Sec 552(b)(6))]

Hi Mina and Josh,

As we mentioned earlier this week, Google has several teams working to support covid relief efforts, we wanted to reach out to share two new tools we've developed to help public health officials and researchers better understand the vaccination needs of their communities:

- COVID-19 Vaccination Access Dataset: In an effort to support local, state and federal public health officials in their vaccination efforts, this public tool quantifies access to vaccination sites, taking into account travel time (from Google Directions API, no user data) via different modes of transportation. We hope the dataset can help public health officials, researchers, and healthcare providers identify areas where vaccination sites are inaccessible or hard to reach, and inform interventions such as pop up vaccination sites or transportation support. This dataset powers Ariadne Labs & Boston Children's Hospital's new Vaccine Equity Planner dashboard, which integrates and visualizes our data with data from other relevant COVID-19 sources.
- COVID-19 Vaccination Search Insights tool: We've heard from leading public health organizations and researchers that they have a difficult time knowing what information their communities are seeking about vaccines and vaccination and that they lack localized, timely sources of data that could inform their vaccine campaigns. Using aggregated and anonymized Google Search data, the insights tool (currently in early access phase, with upcoming public release) will show trends over time at the county and zipcode level representing the relative search interest in COVID-19 vaccination. The data is normalized such that users can compare the trends in different regions, and over time, without exposing any individual query or even the actual number of queries in any given area.

Please see our blog post for more details. Both tools will initially be available in English and in the US to start, with plans to explore international expansion in the months ahead. Please let me know if you have any questions or if it would be helpful to find time to discuss and/or demo the tools with our team.

Thank you,
Jan

Welcome to Protocol | Enterprise, your comprehensive roundup of everything you need to know about the week in cloud and enterprise software. This Monday: the data wars heat up, Benioff's DEI blind spot, and SentinelOne's S-1 lands.

Also, don't miss our event today, with Protocol | Enterprise's Joe Williams in conversation with Databricks CEO Ali Ghodsi at 8 a.m. PT/11 a.m. ET. Learn what's next for the company and how Databricks plans to win in an increasingly competitive market. Register now to reserve your spot.

THE BIG STORY

Drifting away?

Snowflake helped reinvent the data warehouse for the cloud. And its success paved the way for huge funding rounds for Dremio, Cockroach Labs, Starburst and even key rival Databricks. But the company has struggled to maintain the stock market momentum from its historic IPO, with the stock now down roughly 38% from its December high as of Friday's market close.

It's difficult to say exactly what investors are concerned about, but it doesn't appear to be CEO Frank Sloatman's comments on Thursday about diversity taking a second seat to merit. Revenue was up 110% in the most recent quarter to $228.9 million.

But one thing is clear: The competitive environment is becoming much harsher.

- Rivals are becoming more vocal about what they believe are shortcomings in Snowflake's technology, claiming that the company is no better than legacy platforms when it comes to allowing users to share data with non-users.
- "The nefarious problem in much of our world when it comes to dealing with data isn't the point of querying the data," said Dremio CEO Billy Bosworth. It's "all the movement and copying of the data required to get you to the point."
- In a show of just how much scrutiny the company is under, Snowflake published a blog post in March co-authored by all the founders titled "Choosing Open Wisely," which aimed to debunk some of those attacks.
- Tucked away within the diatribe was a short, but telling line: "We're now undergoing one of the most substantial changes in our industry: delivering solutions as managed services." That shift, the founders argued, is changing how open-source technology should be evaluated.
- Open-file formats "limit innovation in the long run," Snowflake product head Christian Kleinerman told Protocol.

Recent announcements from rivals Dremio and Databricks underscored the divide between where Snowflake and other companies in the industry are headed

- Last month, Databricks rolled out a new feature called Delta Sharing that enabled anyone to share data housed in the company's platform with anyone else, so long as they used another vendor that supports its Delta Lake open-source project.
- That means that if two data scientists use tools like Power BI, Tableau or FactSet, they can share information sets between each other without having to be Databricks customers.
- "It's the industry's first-ever data sharing mechanism that's open," Ghodsi told Protocol.
- Dremio also just introduced a new product that enables users to run all their SQL workloads on data lakes — a key step in its goal of eliminating cloud data warehouses, which would run Snowflake (and others) out of business.

That is unlikely to happen, given how prevalent the technology is and how devoted some Snowflake users are. The company claims a net retention rate of 168%, much higher than the industry average.

But the move to more interoperability is a big industry shift that can't be ignored.

- In the past, for example, Oracle customers could only share data sets with other Oracle customers, which locked customers into one provider.
- That forced enterprises to buy database services from many vendors, the exact situation today's database tech leaders are trying to avoid.
- In some ways, that old paradigm is as true for Snowflake customers as it was for Oracle customers: They're restricted from sharing information sets with non-Snowflake customers.
- But Kleinerman said that was a deliberate move by the company, one that allows Snowflake to make its engine continually more powerful because it's only working with one type of file format.
- "The notion of everything open sounds great. We think we can have a much better experience and more interesting use cases with Snowflake on both sides," he said.
- Kleinerman cited a recent move by Snowflake to adjust its own file formats, which he said led to as much as a 30% reduction in costs for customers.
- "That is very difficult to do with open cloud formats," Kleinerman added.

Still, there are signs that Snowflake at least recognizes the threats posed by Databricks, Dremio and others.

- It recently added support for Java and Python, for example, in an attempt to bring more data scientists onto the platform.
- And it's pushing what it calls Reader accounts, effectively very basic Snowflake accounts that allow those users to then receive data sets from the higher-paying customers.

None of this is to say Snowflake is doomed. Even its closest competitors will admit the company has an outstanding product — it just might not be as game-changing as Sloodman and other leaders may be touting to the marketplace.

- The reality is many large enterprises are using Snowflake. And startups are eager to build around the technology.

- Cloud security startup Lacework, for example, has 100 data warehouses running on Snowflake and chief architect Ulfar Erlingsson plans to grow that threefold in the near future.
- Snowflake is also about to make a big push to court application developers, Kleinerman said, hinting at an announcement this week that would help further solidify the platform into the broader tech ecosystem.

What's happening now with the stock is probably more a leveling out of the insane investor interest from December based on the pandemic-fueled surge of interest in cloud companies, and less a direct reflection of any major struggles in Snowflake's business.

But as users push for open ecosystems that give them the flexibility to run their data on whatever engine they want, Snowflake will have to effectively straddle the boundary it has created between open and closed architectures.

One thing is certain: Rivals are charging hard.

Thanks for this. It is interesting – It's what I'd like to see, i.e. more competition focused on end user problems. Honestly, the angle of pushing interoperability is a great underdog strategy for companies trying to break into a market with a dominant player. It's not about switching it's about actual choice.

Introduction to Google Cloud

- Google Cloud consists of a set of physical assets and virtual computing resources that are contained in Google's data centers around the globe (in contrast to its competitors, Google Cloud does not have any data centers in mainland China). Uniquely, we accredit our entire infrastructure against standards such as FedRAMP enabling us to serve at the scale of our company and with innovation from today, not from 5 years ago when a separate USG-only cloud was stood up. This is the same infrastructure that Google uses to support its search service, email service (Gmail), YouTube and other services. However, Google Cloud customers' data is in no way used to support these services and Google cannot access a Google Cloud customer's data without the customer's consent.

- Google Cloud services include: Computing and hosting; Storage; Databases; Networking; Big data and Artificial Intelligence and Machine learning.
- Google Cloud is the third largest commercial cloud computing company in the world, behind Amazon AWS and Microsoft Azure, but has experienced 47% growth year-over-year. Google Cloud (along with AWS) is a strong proponent of multi-cloud approaches by companies, agencies or departments. Google Cloud is one of the many cloud providers serving the CIA through its multi-cloud C2E procurement, as well as a provider of cloud services on the Air Force's multi-cloud contract known as Cloud One and the Army's multi-cloud contract.
- Google Cloud's consumer email and collaboration services, known as Gmail, and its enterprise email and collaboration service, known as Workspace, are used by billions around the world.

Sorry to be slow to respond, Michael. Whenever you can do it is fine. We're going to try to pull together some highlights over the weekend for our internal Zoom going-away for next week, but we'll be putting together a longer video for Rich's in-person party in a few months, so your video can be included in that even if it's too late for the first set of highlights.

Thanks for helping out on this. I know Rich will really appreciate it.

Leadership isn't about simply being in charge and treating your people like driers and barking orders. Leadership is sharing your knowledge and your action so that others grow and reach their potential.

Rich Theroux

Former OIRAnians,

If you haven't already heard, Rich Theroux is retiring from OIRA after more than 35 years, and regulatory review will never be the same. We are planning to have a large, in-person party for him once folks are back in the office, so please stay tuned for news on that. Meanwhile, we will have a small, virtual get-together for current OIRA staff near the end of June.

We could use your help with Rich's send-offs. We want to put together a compilation of videos from Rich's current and former colleagues at OIRA. If possible, we'd like a short (one-minute) video from you about Rich. The video can be funny, nostalgic, or (even better) embarrassing for Rich. You can record a video on your phone or computer and upload it at <https://www.tribute.co/richard-theroux/>. Please upload videos by Friday, June 11 (we apologize for the short notice, but we are policy analysts not video editors—it's going to be a long weekend learning how to be creative!). We'll show highlights from the videos at our virtual and in-person parties and we'll share the full videos with Rich.

Thanks for your help!

Hello team, I know how busy everyone is, but I wanted to extend a personal invitation to attend our upcoming Gov Forum next Tuesday 6/15 11am – 2pm (any portion that you can) for creative ideas we may want to incorporate into the virtual portion of our own conference. We are using the same Intrado platform. You can register HERE.

Warm regards,

Sorry to be slow to respond, Michael. Whenever you can do it is fine. We're going to try to pull together some highlights over the weekend for our internal Zoom going-away for next week, but we'll be putting together a longer video for Rich's in-person party in a few months, so your video can be included in that even if it's too late for the first set of highlights.

Thanks for helping out on this. I know Rich will really appreciate it.

Best,

Leadership isn't about simply being in charge and treating your people like children and barking orders. Leadership is sharing your knowledge and your experience so that others grow and reach their potential.

Rich Theroux

Former OIRAnians,

If you haven't already heard, Rich Theroux is retiring from OIRA after more than 35 years, and regulatory review will never be the same. We are planning to have a large, in-person party for him once folks are back in the office, so please stay tuned for news on that. Meanwhile, we will have a small, virtual get-together for current OIRA staff near the end of June.

We could use your help with Rich's send-offs. We want to put together a compilation of videos from Rich's current and former colleagues at OIRA. If possible, we'd like a short (one-minute) video from you about Rich. The video can be funny, nostalgic, or (even better) embarrassing for Rich. You can record a video on your phone or computer and upload it at >><<https://www.tribute.co/richard-theroux/<<. Please upload videos by Friday, June 11 (we apologize for the short notice, but we are policy analysts not video editors—it's going to be a long weekend learning how to be creative!). We'll show highlights from the videos at our virtual and in-person parties and we'll share the full videos with Rich.

Thanks for your help!

Vint,

Thank you for your support and encouragement for the IPv6 initiatives. Your keynote today at the IPv6 Summit was great and I loved hearing the stories. I appreciate you generously sharing your time and perspective with the community.

Respectfully,

Ron

Merici,

Thanks for the note. We have asked out internally to think through product capabilities, and hope to hear back shortly. I'll ping you an update tomorrow on where this stands.

Best,

Tom

Hi Tom and Johanna,

Thanks again for the time yesterday – just wanted to follow up on one item – CHILDCTC is going to be the ACH memo on payments. I know we mentioned it, but that search team is going to be pretty critical on/around July 15 (and monthly thereafter through December).

Also Tom – let us know if we can do anything on the knowledge panel or anything else.

Appreciate all of this, many thanks,
Merici

Thank you so much Tom and team Google! Just one quick flag – your note below mentions a Tuesday launch, but I wanted to clarify that the CTC Awareness Day will be Monday. Of course, all of your work is still incredibly helpful well after Monday's day of action!

Best,
Maggie

We've circled with the Google product teams, and can report back on a few things:

- First, we've made our misinformation cohort aware, triggering their watch over the rollout in hopes to avoid fraud;
- Our search team will be reviewing the launch on Tuesday to assure that the website is surfacing appropriately. It's been on their radar since announcement in the ARP, and they're exploring what is possible from search's end (might take a few more days to get concrete answers). They do recommend, however, that the IRS/White House consider implementing FAQ structured data on the pages, as there are question and answer pairs at the bottom. This obviously does not guarantee rich results, but it does improve chances of discoverability for users who are searching for more information;
- YouTube is now working with the White House digital team to pair with YT creators who can amplify the message, and will be streaming VP Harris' speech on the White House YouTube channel.

Please let me know if there are any follow up questions.

Our product teams have brought back a few more best practices you can use to improve discoverability of resources and information on the CTC.

- SEO Best Practices One-sheets (see attached)
- Best Practices for Web and Search - Toolkit and Playbook for Government Agencies
 - Best practices for health and government websites
 - SEO for governments and authority entities (YouTube)
 - Google Search Central for support on Search related questions
 - Google Search Console Training (YouTube)
- Government Services Ads Policy - outlines the Ads policy for documents/services that can be obtained directly from a government or delegated provider. You can report any of these types of ads here.

I hope this is helpful.

Tom

Surfacing timely & relevant information on Google

Tips & Best Practices for Governments

Google strives to deliver high-quality, reliable information in Search

On topics where quality information is critically important—like health, finance, civic information, and crisis situations—we place an even greater emphasis on factors related to expertise and trustworthiness.

Implementing structured data on your sites, and using tools like Google Trends and Search Console, can make your information more easily discoverable.

Example; USA.gov has used structured data to optimize their government services pages, including unemployment resources

Tools to help you optimize your content:

1) Learn what people are looking for

Google Trends is a public facing platform that surfaces trending queries from around the world on any given topic.

Trends.google.com

Trends FAQ

2) Connect people directly to resources

Structured data is a standardized format for organizing websites so that Search engines can more easily read them.

Best practices for health & government websites

Search Help Center

3) Get the most out of your Search data

Search Console provides free tools and analytics to help site owners improve their websites and optimize their appearance on Google. Find Search Console best practices and trainings on YouTube.

Afternoon All!

Thank you NAINA for all you did over the past 2 years to keep our AFCEA Bethesda Chapter financially strong (actually growing!) and our programs of the highest caliber. You were the perfect leader during this turbulent time. We are grateful for your dedication and passion to serve. You are a role model! You were united in bringing together great thinkers and doers that resulted in successful programs serving the government community. That team work and devotion resulted in our ability to raise our donation levels to each of our program causes and to our University STEM programs.

Bottom line, You ROCK!

Sharing a photo we took last evening. The weather was awesome and American Prime is a great venue to meet outdoors! Hope we can do that again with more folks, because we miss the 'in person' of you all!!

Hope EVERYONE is signed up for the final Chapter InnovateIT Award/SGE program next week! Another great program!

On this beautiful Friday afternoon, wishing everyone a relaxing Father's Day weekend and timely celebration of Juneteenth.

Best regards,
kc

It's almost time!

In less than 24 hours we will see you for the 4th annual government UX Summit! We are so excited, we probably won't sleep tonight.

As a reminder:

The sessions will be from 11 am – 4 pm EST

Breaks at: 12:00 pm, 1:30 pm, 2:45 pm, 4:00 pm EST

Zoom links for each day -- plus networking events – available below (and also attached as slides)

You're going to be hearing from brilliant minds at all different levels of government, from all different types of design and from all different experience levels. All attendees will be muted and encouraged to ask questions during each presentation via the Q & A box. Questions will be answered towards the end of the event during the Q & A portion of the event.

Additionally, we are offering live online networking events after the Summit on Tuesday and Wednesday.

On Tuesday, June 22 event-goers can network with leaders in breakout rooms to hear what it's like to work at the:

- Federal level
- State level
- City Level

On Wednesday, June 23, we will facilitate conversations in breakout rooms around:

- Operationalizing Design and Research at Scale
- Building a Design Team
- Leading a Change Management/Digital Transformation initiative

Looking forward to seeing you tomorrow!

Jean and Caroline

Hello Denise,

Huge thank you for helping us sort this so we can ensure Chris has a seamless experience. We are grateful and appreciative of his inclusion!

Regarding recording schedules, I am adding in Emily (full information below) from our MeriTalk team who is serving as our Executive Speaking Liaison. She will chime in to confirm schedules and technology needed so it's as easy as possible. Thank you

Regarding a prep call, if Chris's schedule permits, we would welcome a very short prep call and will make sure documents are in order in advance.

Thank you!

Hi Denise,

I will defer to Melissa and team on availability for the prep call.

For the tech check and recording, we'll need to execute these by July 7. We'll need about 30 minutes for a tech check and about one hour for the recording (though we may not actually use the full hour). We have the following availability and are happy to work around Chris's schedule:

- Tech Check: June 28, June 29, or June 30 between 9:30am ET and 7:30pm ET
- Recording: July 1, July 2, July 6, July 7 between 9:30am ET and 7:30pm ET

Thanks so much.

Hi Denise,

I will defer to Melissa and team on availability for the prep call.

For the tech check and recording, we'll need to execute these by July 7. We'll need about 30 minutes for a tech check and about one hour for the recording (though we may not actually use the full hour). We have the following availability and are happy to work around Chris's schedule:

- Tech Check: June 28, June 29, or June 30 between 9:30am ET and 7:30pm ET
- Recording: July 1, July 2, July 6, July 7 between 9:30am ET and 7:30pm ET

Thanks so much.

Best,

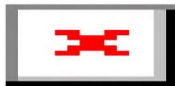

Emily

Hello Denise,

Huge thank you for helping us sort this so we can ensure Chris has a seamless experience. We are grateful and appreciative of his inclusion!

Regarding recording schedules, I am adding in Emily (full information below) from our MeriTalk team who is serving as our Executive Speaking Liaison. She will chime in to confirm schedules and technology needed so it's as easy as possible. Thank you

Regarding a prep call, if Chris's schedule permits, we would welcome a very short prep call and will make sure documents are in order in advance.

Thank you!

Here's the Marquis menu:

Choice of:

Amish Roasted Bell and Evans Chicken Breast | Garlic Foie Gras Butter | Jus Braised Potatoes | Roasted Oyster Mushrooms | Lemon Brussel's Sprouts

OR

Wild Salmon | Onion Jam | Butternut Squash Gnocchi | Caramelized Fennel | Herb Salad | Sage and Brown

OR

Vegetarian Option

Hi Team,

I reached out to the Marquis for a quote to host our award selection dinner on Monday,
September 13. The best they can offer is a 20% discount which comes down to $1,140 plus tax and service charge for 15 people
($89++/person).

The budget for this dinner is only $800. Do we want to look into hosting at someone's office and bring in restaurant catering?

Hi Drew,

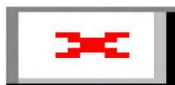

The tech kit consists of: a ring light, blue yeti USB mic, and a Logitech USB webcam – all kit pieces work off of USB-A connection but they send two adapters for USB-C power as well.

Best,

Let me do some investigating. Do you have more specifics on what is in the kit? Like is it a specific microphone that connects through USB?

Thanks, Emily. I'm not sure about our ability to receive and use such a kit. I'm operating in person at the EEOB now. I've added Drew to see if we can run that down.

Hi Denise,

I will defer to Melissa and team on availability for the prep call.

For the tech check and recording, we'll need to execute these by July 7. We'll need about 30 minutes for a tech check and about one hour for the recording (though we may not actually use the full hour). We have the following availability and are happy to work around Chris's schedule:

- Tech Check: June 28, June 29, or June 30 between 9:30am ET and 7:30pm ET
- Recording: July 1, July 2, July 6, July 7 between 9:30am ET and 7:30pm ET

Thanks so much.

Hello Denise,

Huge thank you for helping us sort this so we can ensure Chris has a seamless experience. We are grateful and appreciative of his inclusion!

Regarding recording schedules, I am adding in Emily (full information below) from our MeriTalk team who is serving as our Executive Speaking Liaison. She will chime in to confirm schedules and technology needed so it's as easy as possible. Thank you

Regarding a prep call, if Chris's schedule permits, we would welcome a very short prep call and will make sure documents are in order in advance.

Thank you!

Subject: RE: Weekly Affirm Tag-up Calls

Team - seems like I am apologizing a lot for this meeting lately - but will do it one more time. I have hit some snags at work that have consumed my days and have put some constraint on this meeting. I would like to pick back up after the week of the fourth to get back on track. Given our date change - I believe we still have lots of time to garner really good sponsorship and make this a fantastic event.

Several of you have offered to help and I truly appreciate it and will take you up on it. In the near term I don't think there are pressing questions that have to be answered -

1. We have picked a date - Wednesday 12/8/2021
2. We have venue - Marriott Marquis (contract signature in progress)
3. We have some initial sponsors already (~ 30% of goal with many verbal commits)
4. Nominations are open and have been extended till August (We will need a push on this)
5. Run of Show is still being worked (we have time).
6. Speakers - working on it (prosecutive - Clare Martorana/ Shila working this
7. Advertising/communication plan is in place will start executing in July. (may need a reset based on date change)
7. Budget is set.

Again - my apologies for not cancelling the individual meeting - will do that and ask people to rejoin - July 9th, 2021. FRIDAY at 3:30 PM
Rebecca - let me know if I missed anything.

Hi Denise,

I will defer to Melissa and team on availability for the prep call.

For the tech check and recording, we'll need to execute these by July 7. We'll need about 30 minutes for a tech check and about one hour for the recording (though we may not actually use the full hour). We have the following availability and are happy to work around Chris's schedule:

- Tech Check: June 28, June 29, or June 30 between 9:30am ET and 7:30pm ET
- Recording: July 1, July 2, July 6, July 7 between 9:30am ET and 7:30pm ET

Thanks so much.

Best,

Emily

Hello Denise,

Huge thank you for helping us sort this so we can ensure Chris has a seamless experience. We are grateful and appreciative of his inclusion!

Regarding recording schedules, I am adding in Emily (full information below) from our MeriTalk team who is serving as our Executive Speaking Liaison. She will chime in to confirm schedules and technology needed so it's as easy as possible. Thank you

Regarding a prep call, if Chris's schedule permits, we would welcome a very short prep call and will make sure documents are in order in advance.

Thank you!

Hello site owners and content creators,

We're excited to share with you a new experience -

Search Console Insights.

The goal of Search Console Insights is to help you improve your content. It does that by making it easy for you, whether you're a blogger or a professional SEO, to get an overview and helpful insights on how your content is performing. Search Console Insights can combine data from both Search Console and Google Analytics and help answer questions such as:

Which of your content performs best?

How is your new content performing?

What do people search for on Google before they visit your content?

Thanks for the forward. I agree with your perspective.

Do you know by chance if there is any plan / or consideration for cross-platform interoperability (like what we're working on now)?

Cheers, Alex

Alex,

I thought you would find this article interesting on the multi-vendor solution the state of Virginia is awarding to allow choice and competition to Virginia government employees between Google, Microsoft and other email, calendar, collaboration services.

This is what a CEOS RFP should look like in our opinion -- offering as much choice and competition as possible to all federal agencies.

Thank you,
Lee

Virginia awards $82.5 million contract for 'core messaging services'

JUN 23, 2021 | STATESCOOP

The Virginia Information Technology Agency announced on Wednesday it's awarded an $82.5 million contract to IT service and consulting company NTT Data for messaging and email services.

The contract is a "multisolution" arrangement, said Virginia Chief Information Officer Nelson Moe, meaning that the commonwealth's agencies can choose between Microsoft or Google platforms, rather than being forced into one vendor, for their messaging, calendar, archiving and mobile-device management. The contract will initially run for five years, with several optional extensions built in, according to the agency.

“This multisolution partnership is the first of its kind in the country for the public sector,” Moe said in a press release. “Our customer agencies have distinct needs that require more options, and this competition-driven, innovative solution will allow for better customization and a feature-rich environment now and in the future.”

The process of procuring the software for the agency’s “core messaging services,” Moe said in the press release, was the first time the state had asked vendors to competitively bid since it transitioned to a multisupplier model, rather than asking lone vendors to provide everything by themselves. That transition was completed in April 2020 and has saved the state $212 million between 2021 and 2024, by estimation of the state’s audit commission.

Agencies will likely begin migrating to new platforms of their choosing in early 2022, Virginia officials said.

Based on my knowledge of this it is purely contractual - they missed the opportunity to drive interoperability requirements as part of winning a spot on this contract. This is the opportunity that the US Fed market has with CEOS.

Chris:

Thanks for the ping. From my perspective::

- 1) the need to accelerate the move to Zero Trust by leveraging cloud-based security capabilities where possible
- 2) the need for greater cybersecurity analytics as the corollary to the EO's requirement for more log data and EDR, again powered by cloud. All of this to drive down time-to-detect.
- 3) supply chain security
- 4) the need/potential to shift thinking about cybersecurity from a more traditional focus on compliance to a greater focus on outcomes
- 5) the need to de-risk the existing IT environment, with a focus on ensuring competition
- 5) overall cybersecurity transformation and modernization

Melissa/Jacob, let me know what else you might add.

Hi Tom!

Thanks so much for everything you're doing – so far, looking pretty good. Thanks so much!

I have a couple of follow up questions and requests –

- Can the knowledge box link to childtaxcredit.gov (vs Wikipedia)?
- Can we surface childtaxcredit.gov above the other .coms? it's not on the homepage at all; I understand the IRS.gov has the history, but given the plain language FAQs live on childtaxcredit.gov, it would be great if it could appear below the IRS links if possible
- Below you say "implementing FAQ structured data on the pages" – I'm not quite sure what that means in terms of how to display it differently than what we have? Any advice you have would be greatly appreciated!

Thanks again – really appreciate all of this,
Merici

Our product teams have brought back a few more best practices you can use to improve discoverability of resources and information on the CTC.

- SEO Best Practices One-sheeter (see attached)
- Best Practices for Web and Search - Toolkit and Playbook for Government Agencies
 - o Best practices for health and government websites
 - o SEO for governments and authority entities (YouTube)
 - o Google Search Central for support on Search related questions
 - o Google Search Console Training (YouTube)

- Government Services Ads Policy - outlines the Ads policy for documents/services that can be obtained directly from a government or delegated provider. You can report any of these types of ads here.

I hope this is helpful.

Best,
Tom

We've circled with the Google product teams, and can report back on a few things:

- First, we've made our misinformation cohort aware, triggering their watch over the rollout in hopes to avoid fraud;
- Our search team will be reviewing the launch on Tuesday to assure that the website is surfacing appropriately. It's been on their radar since announcement in the ARP, and they're exploring what is possible from search's end (might take a few more days to get concrete answers). They do recommend, however, that the IRS/White House consider implementing FAQ structured data on the pages, as there are question and answer pairs at the bottom. This obviously does not guarantee rich results, but it does improve chances of discoverability for users who are searching for more information;
- YouTube is now working with the White House digital team to pair with YT creators who can amplify the message, and will be streaming VP Harris' speech on the White House YouTube channel.

Please let me know if there are any follow up questions.

Best,

I have a couple of follow up questions and requests –

- Can the knowledge box link to childtaxcredit.gov (vs Wikipedia)?
- Can we surface childtaxcredit.gov above the other .coms? it's not on the homepage at all; I understand the IRS.gov has the history, but given the plain language FAQs live on childtaxcredit.gov, it would be great if it could appear below the IRS links if possible
- Below you say "implementing FAQ structured data on the pages" – I'm not quite sure what that means in terms of how to display it differently than what we have? Any advice you have would be greatly appreciated!

Thanks again – really appreciate all of this,

Merici

We've circled with the Google product teams, and can report back on a few things:

- First, we've made our misinformation cohort aware, triggering their watch over the rollout in hopes to avoid fraud;

- Our search team will be reviewing the launch on Tuesday to assure that the website is surfacing appropriately. It's been on their radar since announcement in the ARP, and they're exploring what is possible from search's end (might take a few more days to get concrete answers). They do recommend, however, that the IRS/White House consider implementing FAQ structured data on the pages, as there are question and answer pairs at the bottom. This obviously does not guarantee rich results, but it does improve chances of discoverability for users who are searching for more information;

- YouTube is now working with the White House digital team to pair with YT creators who can amplify the message, and will be streaming VP Harris' speech on the White House YouTube channel.

Please let me know if there are any follow up questions.

Dear ACT and IAC Leadership Team: On behalf of our ACT President, Gary Washington and our IAC Chair, Margie Graves, we're looking forward to our 1st virtual strategic planning session this Thursday, July 8th from 4:00-6:00pm. Here's everything you need to know for the meeting:

1. Read-ahead material: We've attached five files to this email:

1.a. "ACT-IAC – 2021-2023 Strategy – 09-21-20.pdf": A copy of our 3 Year Strategy created as a result of last year's July strategy sessions. Of particular importance for the meeting this Thursday will be your review of Appendix 1 on Page 6, which lists the top issues and technology opportunities that the group agreed last summer would be the top priorities for government agencies in the year ahead. One of the outcomes of this Thursday's session will be to update/revise this list of priorities.

1.b. "Administration Priorities – 07-01-2021.docx": A summary of some of the initial policy statements of the Biden Administration to "prime the pump" for your short homework assignment (see below) and our discussion on what the top priorities should be for the year ahead.

1.c. "2020-2021 ACT Executive Committee 07-02-21.pdf": A listing of the current ACT EC Members

1.d. "IAC Executive Committee 2021-2022 – 07-01-21.pdf": A listing of the current IAC EC Members

2. Homework assignment for Session 1: We'd ask that you take a few moments to do the following in preparation for Thursday's discussion:

2.a. Take a few minutes to review the 2021-2023 ACT-IAC Strategy (particularly Appendix 1 on page 6) and the Administration Priorities Word document so you'll be ready for the discussion.

2.b. Bring your list of specific things that you'd like to add, modify and/or delete from the Appendix 1 list of top government priorities for the year ahead.

2.c. Take a moment and think about one sentence you would use to introduce yourself in the vein of a social media "handle" for our opening introductions, where we will rapidly go through 54 people, each offering up four things about themselves: (1) Your Name, (2) Your Current Job, (3) Your ACT-IAC Role, and (4) One sentence about you that could serve as your social media "handle."

3. Plan for session 1 (07-08-21): For our 1st session we will do some stage setting about the current state of the organization, building on the 3 year strategy we put into place last year, introductions by all attendees, recognition of our out-going/incoming EC members and then a group discussion on the top priorities for the year ahead (a key ingredient for the on-going planning work by all of our volunteers and work groups).

4. Reminder – Session 2: Our second session will be on Thursday, July 22nd, 4:00-6:00pm and will include a recap of the outcomes of our 1st session, reviewing our progress against the five goals in our strategy and then creating ideas for our Year 2 action plan.

5. Reminder – In-Person ACT & IAC EC opportunity: We have also invited all of the strategy participants to an optional in-person session at Blackwell Hitch in Old Town Alexandria from 5:00-7:00pm on Tuesday, July 27th. The Blackwell Hitch restaurant is located at 5 Cameron Street, Alexandria, VA 22314, and we will meet on the Potomac Patio.

6. Zoom info for Session 1 provided below for your convenience ...

Merici,

Our response to your questions are in green below:

- Can the knowledge box link to childtaxcredit.gov (vs Wikipedia)?

Google cannot change the structure of the About card. All About cards link to Wiki as a part of organic search and triggering. Additionally, the purpose of the About card is to surface general information about a topic, so the WH link would not actually be the right fit for the product treatment, as it's specific to the current benefit.

- Can we surface childtaxcredit.gov above the other .coms? it's not on the homepage at all; I understand the IRS.gov has the history, but given the plain language FAQs live on childtaxcredit.gov, it would be great if it could appear below the IRS links if possible

We unfortunately cannot make any changes to organic Search either. It's not necessarily about IRS.gov having the history. There are a lot of factors that go into ranking and ultimately the IRS is the administering agency for the Child Tax Credit. Check out this blog on how Search delivers quality information, and why ranking is not something we can change unless it is in violation of one of our policies.

- Below you say "implementing FAQ structured data on the pages" – I'm not quite sure what that means in terms of how to display it differently than what we have? Any advice you have would be greatly appreciated!

Implementing FAQ does not necessarily change the 'display'. Structured data is a standardized format for providing information about a page and classifying the page content. The developer docs to implement the schema lays this out pretty clearly. Nevertheless, rich results are not guaranteed when you implement structured data, but if the page ranks high it could trigger to make the page more discoverable.

I hope this is helpful and happy to answer any other questions you might have.

Best,
Tom

Over the next decade, waves of exponential tech advancements will stack atop one another, eclipsing decades of breakthroughs in scale and impact.

Emerging from these waves are 20 “Metatrends,” likely to revolutionize entire industries (old and new), redefine tomorrow's generation of businesses and contemporary challenges, and transform our lives from the bottom up.

These Metatrends include augmented human longevity, the surging smart economy, AI-human collaboration, urbanized cellular agriculture, and high-bandwidth brain-computer interfaces... just to name a few.

This is where master entrepreneurs and their teams must see beyond the immediate implications of a given technology, and capture second-order, Google-sized business opportunities on the horizon.

Discussing these Metatrends is a key focus of my year-round entrepreneur coaching program Abundance360.

In this two-part blog series, we'll look at how these 20 Metatrends are shaping our future. Today, I'll discuss the first 10: from increasing healthspan to AI-human collaboration.

Welcome to a new era of runaway technological booms, historic watershed moments, and extraordinary abundance.

10 METATRENDS SHAPING OUR FUTURE

(1) Continued Increase in Global Abundance: The number of individuals in extreme poverty continues to drop, as the middle-income population continues to rise. Everyday goods and services (finance, insurance, education, and entertainment) are being digitized and becoming fully demonetized, available to the rising billion on mobile devices. The case for abundance has massively proven out since the publication of Abundance: The Future Is Better Than You Think in 2012.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: high-bandwidth and low-cost communication, ubiquitous AI on the cloud, growing access to AI-aided education and AI-driven healthcare.

(2) Global Gigabit Connectivity Will Connect Everyone and Everything, Everywhere, at Ultra-low Cost: The deployment of both licensed and unlicensed 5G, plus the launch of a multitude of global satellite networks (Starlink, OneWeb, etc.), allow for ubiquitous, low-cost communications for everyone, everywhere—not to mention the connection of trillions of devices. And today's skyrocketing connectivity is bringing online an additional 3 billion individuals, driving tens of trillions of dollars into the global economy.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: low-cost space launches, hardware advancements, 5G networks, artificial intelligence, materials science, and surging computing power.

(3) The Average Human Healthspan Will Increase by 10+ Years: A dozen game-changing biotech and pharmaceutical solutions (currently in Phase 1, 2, or 3 clinical trials) will reach consumers this decade, adding an additional 10+ years to the human healthspan. Technologies include stem cell supply restoration, Wnt pathway manipulation, senolytic medicines, a new generation of Endo-Vaccines, GDF-11, and supplementation of NMD/NAD+, among several others. And as machine learning continues to mature, AI is set to unleash countless new drug candidates, ready for clinical trials. This is the topic of my next book called LIFEFORCE being co-authored with Tony Robbins and Bob Hariri, MD/PhD (Celularity) that will be available in February 2022.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: genome sequencing, CRISPR technologies, AI, quantum computing, and cellular medicine.

(4) An Age of Capital Abundance Will See Increasing Access to Capital Everywhere: Over the past few years, humanity hit all-time highs in the global flow of seed capital, venture capital, and sovereign wealth fund investments. While this trend will witness some ups and downs in the wake of future recessions, it is expected to continue its overall upward trajectory. Capital abundance leads to the funding and testing of "crazy" entrepreneurial ideas, which in turn accelerate innovation. Already, $300B in crowdfunding is anticipated by 2025, democratizing capital access for entrepreneurs worldwide. And even during a pandemic (2020), the world deployed more venture capital than ever before, handily beating out the last high-water mark in 2019.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: global connectivity, dematerialization, demonetization, and democratization.

(5) Augmented Reality and the Spatial Web Will Achieve Ubiquitous Deployment: The combination of Augmented Reality (yielding Web 3.0, or the Spatial Web) and 5G networks (offering 100Mb/s - 10Gb/s connection speeds) will transform how we live our everyday lives, impacting every industry from retail and advertising, to education and entertainment. Consumers will play, learn and shop throughout the day in a newly intelligent, virtually overlaid world. This is where technologies like SpatialWeb.net, Vatoms, and Apple's next generation AR & VR headsets will shine.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: hardware advancements, 5G networks, artificial intelligence, materials science, and surging computing power.

(6) Everything is Smart, Embedded with Intelligence: The price of specialized machine learning chips is dropping rapidly with a rise in global demand. Imagine a specialized $5 chip that enables AI for a toy, a shoe, a kitchen cabinet? Combined with the explosion of low-cost microscopic sensors and the deployment of high-bandwidth networks, we're heading into a decade wherein every device becomes intelligent. Your child's toy remembers her face and name. Your kid's drone safely and diligently follows and videos all the children at the birthday party. Appliances respond to voice commands and anticipate your needs.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: AI, 5G networks, and more advanced sensors.

(7) AI Will Achieve Human-level Intelligence: As predicted by technologist and futurist Ray Kurzweil, artificial intelligence will reach human-level performance this decade (by 2030). Through the 2020s, AI algorithms and machine learning tools will be increasingly made open source, available on the cloud, allowing any individual with an internet connection to supplement their cognitive ability, augment their problem-solving capacity, and build new ventures at a fraction of the current cost.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: global high-bandwidth connectivity, neural networks, and cloud computing. Every industry, spanning industrial design, healthcare, education, and entertainment, will be impacted.

(8) AI-Human Collaboration Will Skyrocket Across All Professions: The rise of "AI as a Service" (AlaaS) platforms will enable humans to partner with AI in every aspect of their work, at every level, in every industry. AIs will become entrenched in everyday business operations, serving as cognitive collaborators to employees—supporting creative tasks, generating new ideas, and tackling previously unattainable innovations. In some fields, partnership with AI will even become a requirement. For example: in the future, making certain diagnoses without the consultation of AI may be deemed malpractice.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: increasingly intelligent AI, global high-bandwidth connectivity, neural networks, and cloud computing.

(9) Most Individuals Adapt a JARVIS-like “Software Shell” to Improve Their Quality of Life: As services like Alexa, Google Home, and Apple HomePod expand in functionality, such services will eventually travel beyond the home and become your cognitive prosthetic 24/7. Imagine a secure JARVIS-like software shell that you give permission to listen to all your conversations, read your email, monitor your blood chemistry, etc. With access to such data, these AI-enabled software shells will learn your preferences, anticipate your needs and behavior, shop for you, monitor your health, and help you problem-solve in support of your mid- and long-term goals.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: increasingly intelligent AI, neural networks, and cloud computing.

(10) Globally Abundant, Cheap Renewable Energy: Continued advancements in solar, wind, geothermal, hydroelectric, nuclear and localized grids will drive humanity towards cheap, abundant, and ubiquitous renewable energy. The price per kilowatt-hour will drop below 1 cent per kilowatt-hour for renewables, just as storage drops below a mere 3 cents per kilowatt-hour, resulting in the majority displacement of fossil fuels globally. And as the world’s poorest countries are also the world’s sunniest, the democratization of both new and traditional storage technologies will grant energy abundance to those already bathed in sunlight. Incredible companies like Heliogen will be able to mine sunlight and water to create cheap, abundant hydrogen as a storage medium. We are also on the cusp of many breakthroughs in fusion power as capital, new materials, and entrepreneurs pour in this arena.

This Metatrend is driven by the convergence of the following: materials science, hardware advancements, AI/algorithms, and improved battery technologies.

The decade ahead is going to be the BEST TIME EVER to be an exponential entrepreneur. With many dozens of Google-sized ($1T) opportunities emerging and thousands of multi-hundred-million-dollar startups on the horizon.

Are you clear about how you’re going to use these Metatrends? About what company you’re going to build next?

Would you like my coaching on this topic? Then...

JOIN MY ABUNDANCE360 COMMUNITY

If you want my coaching as an exponential entrepreneur and to reinforce those mindsets that will inspire and guide you to create a hopeful, compelling and abundant future for yourself and humanity, then consider joining my year-round Abundance360 coaching program.

Every year, my team and I select a group of 360 entrepreneurs and CEOs to coach over the course of a year-long program. You can join at any time for a full year's worth of personal coaching on Exponential Tech, Longevity, Moonshots, and Abundance thinking.

My mission is to help A360 members obtain mastery in four specific mindsets: an Abundance Mindset; an Exponential Mindset; a Moonshot Mindset; and a Longevity Mindset. Together we will actively select and reinforce your preferred Mindsets.

Chris:

I want to personally invite you to join us for an invite-only, virtual roundtable event on July 21, 2020 from 10:15 AM - 11:15 AM ET. This roundtable is designed to bring together a small group of top Federal leaders, cloud visionaries, and transformational thinkers to talk about matters of cyber security.

The specific topic for this roundtable is:

Topic: Security Transformation with Zero Trust

Description: As pioneers of Zero Trust since 2010, Google Cloud understands how Zero Trust principles and tools can add layers of protection for government departments that now have thousands of employees working from home. In the wake of President Biden's May 12, 2021 "Executive Order on Improving the Nation's Cybersecurity" we plan to address questions around Zero Trust, how best to implement your plan, and how there is no one-size-fits-all approach.

Hosts: Dan Prieto, Strategic Executive, US Public Sector, Google Cloud & Max Saltonstall, Developer Relations Engineer, Google Cloud

Date: July 21, 2021

Time: 10:15 AM - 11:15 AM ET

Location: (Virtual) Google Meet details to be shared upon RSVP-ing

Please let us know if you are able to attend by responding to this email. Once you have RSVP'd, we will follow up with a calendar invitation with the final details of the event.

Please note: There is no preparation needed for the discussion.

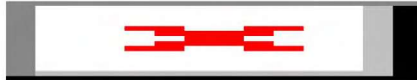

If you have any questions, please reach out to Hannah Shatzen, Ex 6 - (5 U.S.C. Sec 552(b)(6))

See you there,

So exciting Brian. Good luck to you and your wife. And don't forget to send pictures!!

As Brian indicated below, I will be covering while he is enjoying his new fatherhood. I look forward to our discussion on Monday (let me know if you didn't receive the invite).

https://drive.google.com/file/d/17eT96JOGVWA_QVuaYSyUC1gxzCWZMWqz/view?usp=sharing)

We have a few key deadlines coming up with session titles and abstracts due next Thursday, July 15th (see calendar below).

Finalize session titles and abstracts	July 15 (two weeks after sessions are prioritized)	August 1
Identify potential speakers for each session and start reaching out to them	July 15	August 1

Here are some suggestions for the topics:

- Fostering Interagency Communication & Collaboration
- Leading across Generations and Personality Types
- Navigating the New Normal: The Hybrid Toolkit
- Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action
- Implementing Technology Business Management (TBM)
- Empowering the Acquisition Workforce: Innovations in Acquisition
- Securing the Supply Chain

During our meeting on Monday, we will finalize the sessions and start building out the abstracts. Please review the deck prior to our meeting and come prepared to narrow down our topics to five.

Have a great weekend!

Regards,
Jessica

Good morning everyone!

Emailing you live from the delivery room. My wife and I are expecting the arrival of our first child today. Therefore, I will be on paternity leave for the next three weeks and will be back August 2nd. In my absence, Jessica Davis will lead us through narrowing sub-topics, recommending speakers and drafting abstracts. You're in great hands.

You all have so much great experience/ideas to offer and I'm excited to see what you all come up with. Take care.

Thanks, Rebecca! It seems the consensus is Old Ebbitt. I am fine with either option but would prefer that it is an secluded experience for the selection committee.

- or
3. EEOB and bring in catering?

Let me see if I can secure a conference room in the EEOB – great views of the west wing...and I can see about food as well...or we can have something delivered.

would just need to see about getting people in...

Good Afternoon,

The private room at Old Ebbitt has a minimum (exclusive of tax and gratuities) that is higher than the total at the Marquis. Since this meeting could last 2-4 hours, I think a conference room where we bring in food would allow for more flexibility and the potential to come in under budget.

Would you be ok to proceed with their route?

Thanks Natalie and Sanjay! I checked with the hotel first because that's where we are having the event, but agree that there are cheaper options!

If you don't mind Alexandria, I can also host you in our building's conference room. Let me know!

Happy to reach out to Old Ebbitt Grille for a quote, if you want to go that route!

Rebecca- is there a reason we are looking at only the Marquis for the dinner. We could probably dinner for 60 a person somewhere. The point is to get together and talk through the nominations right as well as a celebration? Maybe we just look at a restaurant with a back room. We can do it Tysons if need be. Other options - we are talking a delta of 4-5 hundred bucks. Happy to see if Nat's options work too and get some of us to pitch in the rest. Thoughts from team?

Hi Team,

I reached out to the Marquis for a quote to host our award selection dinner on Monday, September 13. The best they can offer is a 20% discount which comes down to $1,140 plus tax and service charge for 15 people ($89+ +/-person).

The budget for this dinner is only $800. Do we want to look into hosting at someone's office and bring in restaurant catering?

Thank you,

So exciting Brian. Good luck to you and your wife. And don't forget to send pictures!!

As Brian indicated below, I will be covering while he is enjoying his new fatherhood. I look forward to our discussion on Monday (let me know if you didn't receive the invite).

 >>https://drive.google.com/file/d/17eT96JOGVWA_QVuaYSyUC1gxzCWZMWqz/view?usp=sharing<<)

We have a few key deadlines coming up with session titles and abstracts due next Thursday, July 15th (see calendar below).

Prioritize session ideas to get down to a final list with appropriate backups <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Need criteria for this, including last year's eval matrix • How to incorporate thoughts about outcomes/knowledge capture into this 	July 1	July 15
Finalize session titles and abstracts	July 15 (two weeks after sessions are prioritized)	August 1
Identify potential speakers for each session and start reaching out to them	July 15	August 1

Here are some suggestions for the topics:

- Fostering Interagency Communication & Collaboration
- Leading across Generations and Personality Types
- Navigating the New Normal: The Hybrid Toolkit
- Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action
- Implementing Technology Business Management (TBM)
- Empowering the Acquisition Workforce: Innovations in Acquisition
- Securing the Supply Chain

During our meeting on Monday, we will finalize the sessions and start building out the abstracts. Please review the deck prior to our meeting and come prepared to narrow down our topics to five.

Have a great weekend!

[EXTERNAL] Google cybersecurity leadership roundtable - next week

Evening Chris - quick ping - understand you are keynoting Google's security summit next week and wanted to invite you - schedule permitting - to join an off-the-record and in person roundtable that Google Cloud's CISO (Phil Venables) and Google Cloud's VP of Global Public Sector (Mike Daniels) are hosting IN PERSON this Monday, July 19th from 2:30 PM- 4:00PM ET at the W Hotel in Washington, D.C. for a select group of cyber leaders in government.

Not sure if you are in Michigan this coming week or in DC, but given it's just around the corner from OMB thought you might like to join. There is no preparation necessary in advance of the roundtable. Just an opportunity for a small group of cyber execs across various agencies to hear from the Google Cloud exec team on the current cyber priorities - off the record.

If you are interested - I can send over the details and a calendar hold with the location and room.

Know Google is very appreciative of you participating as a speaker in their Summit and hope you can consider.

Regards,

Caroline Boyd

Hey all,

It turns out I have to unexpectedly travel on the 19th now!

Thanks to so many for RSVP'ing and apologies for this last minute change.

If it sounds good to all, I am going to try to pick 2 dates in the coming weeks for "Mini-reunion lunches" in DC and then a date in Sept for the all day event.

If you have date preferences, let me know by emailing me directly.

Can't wait to see you all! And I hope you are doing well!

ps- it was also awesome seeing many of you at the 4th of July!

Alexis

Hey Government Innovation Family,

While I am no longer the Chief Innovation Officer at USAID I am still 100% a Gov Innovation Cheerleader and supporter!

I have so enjoyed connecting with all of you over the last year and I know how burnt out many of us are feeling. It is hard to innovate and disrupt without a RECHARGE of like-minded friends (...therapists :) who understand the challenge of trying to be a change-leader!

To that end, I am hosting an "unofficial reunion" of innovation folks in Gov at the Quarry (Harpers Ferry, WV...about an hour from DC)

OR if folks really want to do this, but need to do it in DC, I will make that work too. But as we all know, sometimes to get inspired you have to take yourself out of your normal environment :)

My Goal in buying the Quarry was to ultimately turn it into a free community facilitation space for Innovators. So I figured we might as well get started with us!

(This is done in my personal capacity, nothing to do with Google, this is my way of giving back over time to our country and its public servants) (You can see more of the Quarry here)

This is a chance to catch up as human beings, build cross-agency relationships, welcome each other and new voices and do a bit of an "unconference" to share insights, lessons learned, issues and challenges.

I realize it would be hard to pick a perfect day that will work for everyone so landed on July 19th from 10-3. This is intentionally a work day, as you can absolutely take calls or VTC's from the house as well, so think of it as an "Alternative Telework Location" for the day, where you will happen to be surrounded by the most creative and amazing people in Government...who is in?

For me this would be exciting if it was 4 people or 40, so feel free to invite other innovators who need a "Recharge" and a chance to inspire or be inspired by others.

Please RSVP here, can't wait to see you all!

Best,

Alexis

RE: Centering Civil Rights in Artificial Intelligence and Technology Policy

Dear Dr. Lander, Dr. Parker, and Dr. Nelson,

We, the undersigned civil rights, civil liberties, human rights, technology policy, and research organizations, write to urge the White House Office of Science & Technology Policy (OSTP) to fully incorporate the Biden administration's commitment to "pursue a comprehensive approach to advancing equity for all, including people of color and others who have been historically underserved, marginalized, and adversely affected by persistent poverty and inequality,"¹ into its artificial intelligence (AI) and technology priorities.

We applaud the progress we've seen elsewhere in the Administration; however, to date, the administration's technology priorities, particularly those led by OSTP, have lacked the necessary focus on equity for people of color and others who have been subject to historical and ongoing discrimination. As a first step, we urge OSTP to work actively to identify and address the systemic harms of these technologies, and ensure that it consults deeply with civil rights and civil liberties experts.

Over many years, our organizations have been pushing to advance equity and justice in how technology shapes the core interests and opportunities of vulnerable Americans. In 2014, many of us worked to develop the Civil Rights Principles for the Era of Big Data.² The Obama White House cited the Principles in its landmark big data report, concluding that “big data analytics have the potential to eclipse longstanding civil rights protections in how personal information is used in housing, credit, employment, health, education, and the marketplace.”³ Although today’s terminology has shifted from “big data” to “AI,” the issues remain the same and have only increased in urgency.

The Trump administration made a commitment to foster the development and expansion of AI, but did not devote sufficient attention to technology’s harms and protections for civil rights and civil liberties. Indeed, an Executive Order in 2019 called on various parts of the federal government to reduce barriers to AI development.⁴ Then, in 2020, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) issued final guidance on AI policy considerations that emphasized a regulatory approach focused on “encouraging innovation and growth in AI” over the adoption of strong guardrails to protect against bias and discriminatory outcomes.⁵ Although the guidance notes that agencies should consider issues of fairness and discrimination in AI when weighing regulatory or non-regulatory action, it does not acknowledge the full extent of the dangers that AI poses to civil rights and civil liberties, nor does it prioritize the need to address them. This approach is unacceptable because it fails to address the significant risks and impacts to vulnerable populations across many potential uses of AI. We are concerned that this guidance, particularly as interpreted by the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs (OIRA) and its limited staff, will slow much-needed new rules and policies.

⁵ Office of Mgmt. & Budget, Exec. Office of the President, OMB Memorandum No. M-21-06, Guidance for Regulation on Artificial Intelligence Applications (Nov. 17, 2020), <https://www.whitehouse.gov/wp-content/uploads/2020/11/M-21-06.pdf>. In addition, Executive Order 13960, regarding the use of AI by federal government agencies, articulates a commitment to privacy, civil rights, and civil liberties, but there has been no public follow-up on these efforts, nor is it clear if the agency inventory or OMB guidance mandated by the Order will appropriately underscore concerns of fairness, equity, and preventing discriminatory outcomes.

Since assuming office, this administration has not pursued a public and proactive agenda on the civil rights implications of AI. In fact, the Trump administration's executive orders and regulatory guidance on AI remain in force, which constrains agencies across the federal government in setting policy priorities. The recent National Security Commission on Artificial Intelligence (NSCAI) report — drafted by a commission composed mostly of technologists, business leaders, and academic experts with notably few civil rights advocates or representatives of impacted communities — acknowledged civil rights concerns and included certain recommendations to address them. Yet the report failed to insist that the adoption of critical civil rights safeguards must be a threshold condition for the government's development and use of AI.⁶ Now, the OSTP, in coordination with the National Science Foundation, has formed the National AI Research Resource Task Force (the "Task Force") which once again lacks any civil rights representation notwithstanding the enormous implications of its work on civil rights and civil liberties. Not a single representative was chosen for the Task Force whose work has focused on algorithmic bias, civil rights and liberties, or accountability in the development and deployment of AI.

OSTP must help this Administration bring civil rights and racial justice to the forefront of AI policy across the board in areas beyond national security — in housing, in employment, in criminal legal issues, and more. Otherwise, we risk entrenching existing inequities in AI development and use that will continue to leave our most vulnerable communities behind. We urge OSTP to:

1. Prioritize and support the Domestic Policy Council, OMB, and the federal agencies in assessing how government policies and actions (and inaction) regarding the use of AI and other technologies "perpetuate systemic barriers to opportunities and benefits for people of color and other underserved groups," consistent with Executive Order 13985.⁷ OSTP must play a key role in identifying how technology can drive racial inequities, and helping agencies devise new policies, regulations, enforcement activities, and guidance that address these barriers. We have attached concrete recommendations that some of the signatories to this letter are submitting to a range of federal agencies on addressing technology's role in discrimination in the domains of hiring, housing, and financial services.⁸ We would welcome the opportunity to discuss these priorities and others with you in the near future;

⁸ Please note that not all signatories to this letter have endorsed all of the specific agency recommendations.

2. Engage with a diverse range of stakeholders including civil rights organizations, consumer advocates, and members of impacted communities, not only through public comment periods but also through inclusion in commissions, task forces, advisory boards, and other formal bodies, like the National AI Advisory Committee; and
3. Ensure that federal investment in research and development of AI technologies includes significant and immediate investment in research on anti-discrimination measures and ways that AI systems can be used to advance equity, as well as investment in strategies to increase equity, diversity and inclusion in the tech industry.

Technological progress must promote equity and justice as it enhances safety, economic opportunity, and convenience for everyone. But far too often, people subject to historical and ongoing discrimination face disproportionate surveillance and bear the brunt of harms amplified by new technologies. To fully realize its commitment to civil rights and racial equity, the administration must act swiftly to address these threats.

Thank you for your attention to these matters. For any questions or further discussion, please contact Olga Akselrod (Senior Staff Attorney, Racial Justice Program, ACLU) at 212-549-2659 or oakselrod@aclu.org; or Harlan Yu (Executive Director, Upturn) at 202-677-2359 or harlan@upturn.org.

RE: Addressing Technology's Role in Hiring Discrimination

Too often, technology amplifies and exacerbates racial, gender, disability, economic, and intersectional inequity in our society. Governments and corporations, at the national, state, and local level, are using computer software, statistical models, assessment instruments, and other tools to make important decisions in areas such as employment, health, credit, housing, immigration, and the criminal legal system. In light of these developments, policymakers must take steps to clarify and strengthen guardrails to ensure non-discriminatory and equitable outcomes for all people seeking employment.

We offer the following proposals for the Biden-Harris administration for addressing discrimination arising from the use of new technologies in the hiring process. We urge all agencies to engage with a diverse range of stakeholders, including civil rights organizations, labor and workers' rights organizations, and impacted communities, in order to receive ongoing input and feedback on these important issues. We also encourage agencies to prioritize transparency, both by sharing their data, models, decisions, and proposed solutions so that all stakeholders can stay apprised of and comment on the potential impact of proposed actions, and by encouraging employers and employment technology vendors to share with the public as much information as possible regarding their hiring technologies and assessments of those technologies. We would be pleased to discuss the ideas in this memo in more detail in the weeks and months ahead.

1. Gather information about employers' use of hiring technologies, and proactively investigate discriminatory practices.

A. All agencies and departments should use their authority to collect information about the adoption, design, and impact of hiring technologies.

The EEOC has acknowledged that it needs information beyond individual complaints to direct its enforcement activities.¹ Non-governmental researchers have stressed there are strict limits to non-privileged investigatory efforts.² Fortunately, the Commission has the authority to “make such technical studies as are appropriate to effectuate the purposes and policies of [Title VII] and to make the results of such studies available to the public.”³

However, to date, the Commission has not used these powers to gather information about employers' adoption of hiring technologies.⁴ The Commission should use its research and data gathering authority to help guide enforcement efforts at all levels of government and spur the development of new industry standards. When appropriate, these studies could be conducted collaboratively with large employers or technology vendors and in consultation with the Equitable Data Working Group established under Executive Order 13985.⁵

Other agencies and offices, such as the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Women's Bureau, and the Office of the Secretary of Labor, have broad statutory grants of authority to gather data and conduct investigations relating to the workings of the labor market.⁶ In some instances, these grants of authority are not being utilized, or at least not being utilized to the degree they could be. Given the degree to which employers and vendors have an information advantage in this space, agencies should be proactive and creative in their strategies to collect data and gain glimpses into the nature and extent of employers' use of hiring technologies.

For example, EEOC’s Research and Data Plan identifies the need for research on screening devices, tests, and other practices to identify barriers to opportunity as well as promising selection practices that rely on job-related criteria.”).

B. The Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs (OFCCP) should strengthen its audits and rules.

The OFCCP has a unique and important role to play in guarding against discrimination. Federal contractors must take affirmative action to “ensure that applicants are employed . . . without regard to their race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin,”⁷ and to “employ and advance in employment qualified individuals with disabilities.”⁸

To help ensure employers are meeting these obligations, the OFCCP selects several thousand employers for a routine audit each year.⁹ However, historically, desk audits have been somewhat coarse, and there is evidence that employers' compliance with recordkeeping requirements could be more robust. For example, the supporting documentation required for a desk audit does not include any information about the selection procedures, technologies, or criteria employers use.¹⁰ Moreover, according to a 2020 report, the OFCCP observed that many employers failed to document the number of applicants and hires identifying as people with disabilities.¹¹

The OFCCP should consider expanding and strengthening its auditing regime, particularly in light of the fact that large employers can easily collect and evaluate detailed records.¹² To this end, the OFCCP could expand the supporting documentation required for a routine desk audit to include the specific selection procedures the employer uses for each job or job group, the employers' processes or methodologies for evaluating the selection procedures' adverse impacts, and any alternative selection procedures the employer has designed or provided for applicants with disabilities.

Moreover, the OFCCP should leverage its access to employer data to help the public better understand the hiring technologies used by federal contractors. Federal contractors hold extensive records in modern applicant tracking systems regarding their hiring practices and outcomes, including progress toward affirmative action goals and the impacts of hiring tests and technologies. But the scheduling letter that OFCCP sends to thousands of employers each year does not request any specific information about employee selection devices.¹³ The OFCCP should strengthen employers' reporting requirements and, to the extent permitted by law, make more information public regarding the nature, frequency, and legality of hiring practices that it encounters during the course of its enforcement activity.

Finally, the rapid adoption of new hiring technologies adds urgency to federal contractors' obligation to identify opportunities in agency policies, regulations, and guidance to address systemic inequities for people with disabilities. Beyond enhanced auditing and data requirements, the OFCCP should revisit its regulations under Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and align them with EEOC's Section 501 regulations. Today, Section 503 rules provide lower expectations for federal contractors' affirmative action efforts to employ people with disabilities than parallel rules under Section 501, which require the same of federal agencies. The more ambitious goals of Section 501, including a subgoal for people with targeted disabilities, should be imposed for Section 503 as well.

C. The EEOC should consider using Commissioner charges and directed investigations to address discrimination related to hiring technologies.

Job applicants "typically lack information about a discriminatory hiring policy or practice," making it difficult for them to file complaints.¹⁴ Hiring is only becoming more opaque as employers rapidly adopt new hiring technologies.¹⁵ As of January 2021, the Commission reported that it had not acted upon a single complaint involving the use of new hiring technologies.¹⁶ It is clear a more proactive approach is needed.

When supported by its research and information gathering, the EEOC should consider use of Commissioner charges under Title VII and the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), and directed investigations under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA) and the Equal Pay Act, to investigate discrimination in the absence of individual complaints. Tackling systemic discrimination is “central to the mission of the EEOC,”¹⁷ and new technologies at all stages of the hiring process raise systemic concerns.¹⁸

2. Modernize guidance for selection procedures and expand recordkeeping requirements.

A. The DOL, DOJ, and EEOC should begin a process to update the Uniform Guidelines on Employee Selection Procedures (UGESP).

For many employers and technology vendors, the Uniform Guidelines on Employee Selection Procedures (UGESP) are a key source of guidance for assessing the fairness and validity of hiring selection procedures. Unfortunately, the UGESP, which were adopted in 1978, are showing their age. They were adopted before Congress passed the Americans with Disabilities Act, and they do not address discrimination against people with disabilities, age discrimination, the full scope of sex discrimination, or intersectional discrimination. They lag far behind modern scientific standards, such as the American Psychological Association’s Principles for the Validation and Use of Personnel Selection Procedures (which acknowledges that fairness is an integral part of the validity analysis).¹⁹ And there is a risk that they could be interpreted to allow employers to establish that a hiring procedure with a disparate impact is “valid” based on correlational evidence alone — even if the correlation is based on factors clearly unrelated to job performance.

In the short term, the EEOC should emphasize the UGESP’s limited application as a standard for anti-discriminatory hiring practices, including through a revised and updated “Question and Answers” resources. The EEOC should also publish informal guidance encouraging hiring technology vendors and employers to design, test, and audit their technologies to prevent discriminatory effects.²⁰ Such guidance would not only provide more clarity for employers as to the kind of information that they should be seeking from vendors when procuring hiring technologies and the testing they themselves need to conduct while using them, but also would encourage the creation of third-party auditing standards. Ultimately, however, formal updates to the UGESP are needed to cover recruitment and sourcing practices, create standards for non-statistical auditing, address disability discrimination, and further elevate the importance of job-relatedness. Federal agencies should begin a multistakeholder process to update the UGESP for the modern era.

B. All agencies responsible for enforcement of employment discrimination laws should adopt OFCCP’s Internet Applicant Rule (IAR), and clarify that it applies to all persons assessed and screened by hiring technologies.

The OFCCP’s IAR has long been the most influential standard for determining when an individual becomes an “applicant” for purposes of recordkeeping and compliance with antidiscrimination laws. But several factors have limited the IAR’s practical reach in recent years. First, the IAR only considers someone an “applicant” if they make “an expression of interest in employment” that “indicate[s] the individual possesses the basic qualifications for the position.”²¹ But companies’ sourcing efforts have increasingly relied on web-based advertising and searches of databases containing “passive” candidates who never expressed interest in a particular job or employer, and whose profiles may not indicate their qualifications. It is not clear whether such passive candidates are “applicants” under the IAR.

²⁰ In developing guidance, EEOC should review existing literature and frameworks such as Dillon Reisman et al., AI Now, Algorithmic Impact Assessments: A Practical Framework for Public Agency Accountability (Apr. 2018), <https://ainowinstitute.org/aiareport2018.pdf>; Brookings Institute, Auditing employment algorithms for discrimination, <https://www.brookings.edu/research/auditing-employment-algorithms-for-discrimination/>; Inioluwa Deborah Raji, et al., Closing the AI Accountability Gap: Defining an End-to-End Framework for Internal Algorithmic Auditing (2020); Timnit Gebru and Jamie Morgenstern, et al., Datasheets for Datasets (March 19, 2020); Margaret Mitchell and Simone Wu, et al., Model Cards for Model Reporting (Jan. 2019) Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Supervisory Guidance on Model Risk Management, Apr. 2011, <https://www.occ.gov/news-issuances/bulletins/2011/bulletin-2011-12a.pdf>.

Second, a candidate is no longer considered an applicant under the IAR if the candidate removes themselves from consideration for any reason, or if they are screened out by automated processes without even having an opportunity to “apply.” This places a burden on disabled workers, many of whom may be unable to continue with Internet-based application processes that are inaccessible to them if the employer does not offer an accommodation that would allow them to continue to pursue an employment opportunity further. Finally, no agency other than OFCCP has formally endorsed or adopted the IAR, which reduces the rule’s effective scope as the use of such sourcing methods spreads across the labor market.

To ensure that recordkeeping obligations and compliance efforts track the reality of modern sourcing and recruitment methods, OFCCP should clarify that the IAR applies to every person screened by hiring technologies — even if they never formally applied for a specific position. The IAR should further specify that if a person removes themselves from consideration due to inaccessibility or lack of accommodation, that person should still be considered an applicant. The EEOC, DOJ, and all other agencies responsible for investigating and enforcing employment discrimination laws should then formally adopt the updated rule.

C. All agencies with responsibilities under the ADA and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act should endorse new guidance for diversity and inclusion efforts for people with disabilities.

The Office of Disability Employment Policy (ODEP) is crucial for shaping how procurement and development processes for hiring technologies will impact jobseekers with disabilities. In July 2020, EARN and PEAT developed the Checklist for Employers: Facilitating the Hiring of People with Disabilities Through the Use of eRecruiting Screening Systems, Including AI through an ODEP grant.²² This checklist poses very useful questions for a range of stakeholders involved in the procurement and development process, but they should be expanded to explain these best practices in greater detail to facilitate their adoption by employers. Federal disability law protects job applicants from being forced to disclose disability prior to a conditional job offer in order to fairly participate in the hiring process. This might require making alternative evaluation methods readily available to all applicants at the outset rather than only by request, and proactively addressing ways in which the technologies increase the likelihood of disclosure. All federal agencies responsible for enforcement and/or implementation of the ADA or Section 504 should endorse the checklist's open-ended questions about diversity and inclusion efforts, assessment design, testing, and auditing.

D. The EEOC should require employers to retain records about reasonable accommodations and applicants with disabilities.

The EEOC should require employers to maintain records about the types of reasonable accommodations offered when hiring technologies are used. Records should indicate when and how reasonable accommodations are offered, requested, and denied, as well as the incidence of job rejections under each situation. They should also confirm a robust and transparent process was utilized. Employers should proactively provide for a range of reasonable accommodations, even without request, so as to expand the field of people with disabilities who can access employment opportunities. Guidance should acknowledge that tools such as resume mining software will likely require human review to ensure that candidates are being fairly assessed based on job-related skills and qualifications. The EEOC should establish a process for periodically collecting this information from employers.

The EEOC and the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) should also consider measures to include the collection of data on disability status and targeted disability status in the EEO-1 data collection process. This data is essential to fully assessing employers' compliance with relevant civil rights laws.

3. Hold workshops and convenings on hiring technologies, and make more information available to the public.

All relevant agencies should hold workshops and convenings to gather more information about industry practices. The EEOC held a meeting in 2016 on the implications of big data for equal employment opportunity.²³ However, it did not release a report or public guidance to share any lessons or outcomes of the meeting. All agencies should use their convening authority to gather industry, academics, advocates, impacted communities and other experts to share more information with the public about best practices and enforcement activity.

RE: Addressing Technology's Role in Housing Discrimination

Too often, technology amplifies and exacerbates racial, gender, disability, economic, and intersectional inequity in our society. Governments and corporations, at the national, state, and local level, are using computer software, statistical models, assessment instruments, and other tools to make important decisions in areas such as employment, health, credit, housing, immigration, and the criminal legal system. In light of these developments, policymakers must take steps to ensure non-discriminatory and equitable outcomes in housing.

We offer the following proposals for the Biden-Harris administration for addressing the role of technology in perpetuating discrimination in housing. We urge all agencies to engage with a diverse range of stakeholders, including impacted communities, tenant organizers and housing advocates, reentry advocates, direct services providers (including housing court advocates and those assisting with finding housing and housing subsidies), and civil rights organizations, in order to receive ongoing input and feedback on these important issues. We also encourage agencies to prioritize transparency, both by sharing their data, models, decisions, and proposed solutions so that all of the stakeholders can stay apprised of and comment on the potential impact of proposed actions, and by encouraging users of housing-related technologies to share with the public as much information as possible regarding their technologies and assessments of those technologies. Additionally, we encourage agencies to actively monitor and audit the use of housing-related technologies, and to take investigation and enforcement actions to ensure compliance with the Fair Housing Act and civil rights laws. We'd be pleased to discuss these ideas further in the weeks and months ahead.

1. Address disparate impacts in housing-related technologies.

A. HUD and its partner agencies should proactively monitor and investigate housing technologies for discriminatory effects.

Housing discrimination has evolved along with new and expanding uses of technology, such as machine learning-based lending models,¹ algorithms for determining eligibility for and allocating housing services,² online advertising,³ and tenant screening scores.⁴ It is often difficult or impossible for impacted people to learn about housing discrimination in these systems, and HUD cannot rely on individual complaints alone for its fair housing enforcement.⁵ HUD should work with its partner organizations and other stakeholders to develop new testing methods to uncover discrimination in digital systems.⁶ HUD and its partners and funding recipients should publicly report the methodologies, including the specific types of data used in testing, and results of their testing.

HUD should also issue guidance recommending that covered entities design, test, and audit their models to prevent discriminatory effects and affirmatively further fair housing. These practices should include regularly auditing models for discriminatory effects throughout their conception, design, implementation, and use; proactively looking for and adopting less discriminatory alternatives; assessing whether data used in training technologies is representative and accurate, and that the technologies measure lawful and meaningful attributes and seek to predict valid target outcomes; retaining and documenting in-depth information about the technology, its development and internal auditing sufficient to allow for third party auditing; and publicly releasing internal and external audit reports.⁷ Audits should be designed to assess impacts on all protected classes — including disability, which is the basis for the largest percentage of fair housing complaints — as well as intersectional discrimination.⁸

B. HUD should update its Fair Housing Advertising Guidelines to provide examples of online advertising practices that can violate the Fair Housing Act.

Advertising platforms conduct ad auctions that determine the actual audience to which an ad will be delivered.⁹ These auctions can result in advertisements for economic opportunities being systematically delivered to audiences with significant skews on the basis of race, gender, or other protected group.¹⁰ This can happen even when the advertiser intentionally targets its ad toward a broad audience, such as an entire geographic region.¹¹ HUD should clarify that advertising platforms can face liability for violating the Fair Housing Act when their conduct in delivering advertisements — including the design and function of their ad delivery algorithms — disproportionately steers housing opportunities away from protected groups.

⁷ In developing guidance, HUD should review existing literature and frameworks such as Dillon Reisman et al., AI Now, Algorithmic Impact Assessments: A Practical Framework for Public Agency Accountability, Apr. 2018, <https://ainowinstitute.org/aiareport2018.pdf>; Wilkey et al., supra note 2; Inioluwa Deborah Raji, et al., Closing the AI Accountability Gap: Defining an End-to-End Framework for Internal Algorithmic Auditing, 2020, <https://arxiv.org/abs/2001.00973>; Timnit Gebru et al., Datasheets for Datasets, 2020, <https://arxiv.org/abs/1803.09010>; Margaret Mitchell et al., Model Cards for Model Reporting, 2019, <https://arxiv.org/abs/1810.03993>; Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Supervisory Guidance on Model Risk Management, Apr. 2011, <https://www OCC.gov/news-issuances/bulletins/2011/bulletin-2011-12a.pdf>.

2. Help local jurisdictions evaluate and affirmatively further fair housing.

A. When reinstating the Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing (AFFH) Rule, HUD should provide guidance to program participants on addressing the impacts of technology on fair housing.

Examining the design, use, and outcomes of housing-related technologies must be part of a holistic assessment of fair housing.¹² These technologies include tenant screening systems, risk assessment models, and housing services allocation models, which embed criteria for determining who has access to housing, as well as surveillance technologies used to monitor tenants, often in low-income housing.¹³

HUD should promulgate AFFH guidance clarifying steps local jurisdictions should take to address the fair housing impacts of systems such as tenant screening, surveillance of tenants, and assessments for determining risk or distributing housing and homeless services. These systems fall under the “contributing factors” that HUD identified in its 2015 AFFH guidance.¹⁴ For example, HUD should advise jurisdictions to affirmatively further fair housing by strictly limiting the criteria and information housing providers can use to screen tenants, shielding court records that housing providers unjustifiably use to deny housing (including criminal, landlord-tenant, and other civil court records), and eliminating digital surveillance of tenants.

¹³ For example, some housing providers use background check services, cameras, and other devices to monitor their tenants’ conduct, which can result in eviction or law enforcement intervention for lawful conduct, such as having non-resident visitors. See, e.g., HUD, Office of the General Counsel Guidance on Application of Fair Housing Act Standards to the Enforcement of Local Nuisance and Crime-Free Housing Ordinances Against Victims of Domestic Violence, Other Crime Victims, and Others Who Require Police or Emergency Services, Sept. 13, 2016, <https://www.hud.gov/sites/documents/FINALNUISANCEORDGDNCE.PDF>; Samantha Michaels, Hundreds of Cities Have Adopted a New Strategy for Reducing Crime in Housing. Is it Making Neighborhoods Safer—or Whiter?, Mother Jones, 2019, <https://www.motherjones.com/crime-justice/2019/10/crime-free-housing-making-neighborhoods-safer-or-whiter/>; Ginia Bellafante, The Landlord Wants Facial Recognition in Its Rent-Stabilized Buildings. Why?, N.Y. Times, Mar. 28, 2019, <https://www.nytimes.com/2019/03/28/nyregion/rent-stabilized-buildings-facial-recognition.html>.

¹⁴ HUD’s previous guidance has acknowledged that contributing factors can include “admissions and occupancy policies and procedures, including preferences in publicly supported housing;” lending discrimination; source of income discrimination; “displacement of residents due to economic pressures;” and “barriers faced by individuals and families when attempting to move to a neighborhood or area of their choice.” Dep’t of Housing & Urban Development, AFFH Rule Guidebook 206–19, 2015, <https://www.nhlp.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/09/AFFH-Rule-Guidebook-2015.pdf>. Tenant screening, underwriting, and surveillance technologies can contribute to these factors, for example, by keeping previously evicted tenants from being able to stay in their neighborhoods or cities. The guidance also states that “relevant local data and local knowledge that may assist a regional analysis include: demographic data from neighboring PHAs and policies and procedures concerning admissions and residency preferences for PHAs in the area.” Id. at 91.

B. HUD should continue to update and expand its AFFH datasets to help program participants evaluate access and barriers to fair housing.

To supplement the data HUD already provides for fair housing assessments,¹⁵ HUD should partner with local organizations and agencies to make more local data available to its program participants. This data should include demographics and patterns of segregation; housing data such as property characteristics and affordability; zoning and other land use data; environmental burdens and hazards; disability access and services; and data on access to services and opportunities such as education, employment, social services, childcare, transportation, and healthcare.¹⁶ HUD should broadly share datasets provided by local jurisdictions.

3. End discriminatory background screening as a barrier to housing.

A. HUD should expand its 2016 guidance on the use of criminal records in tenant screening under the Fair Housing Act.

HUD's 2016 guidance acknowledged that criminal record screening tends to have a disparate impact on Black and Latinx renters, and clarified that blanket rejections of potential tenants based on the existence of a criminal record are not justifiable under the Fair Housing Act.¹⁷ HUD's guidance states that "[a] housing provider must [] be able to prove through reliable evidence that its policy or practice of making housing decisions based on criminal history actually assists in protecting resident safety and/or property," and that a tenant screening policy that fails to consider the nature, severity, and recency of the alleged conduct is unlikely to satisfy this standard.¹⁸ However, criminal records remain a formidable barrier to housing, and several jurisdictions have "crime-free housing" ordinances requiring housing providers to conduct criminal background checks and reject or evict tenants for alleged criminal conduct.¹⁹

HUD should revise its 2016 guidance to further clarify the steps housing providers must take to ensure that any criminal record screening is necessary and narrowly tailored to serve a substantial, legitimate, nondiscriminatory interest. In revising its guidance, HUD should look to the growing number of states and cities that have adopted fair chance housing policies limiting housing providers' ability to request and consider criminal records.²⁰ Fair chance housing laws often prohibit housing providers from inquiring into an applicant's criminal history before extending a conditional offer of housing, limit the types of conviction records housing providers can consider, and require the housing provider to consider several factors in evaluating the applicant's record, such as the applicant's age at the time of the alleged offense, whether the alleged offense arose from an applicant's disability, and the degree to which the alleged offense, if it re-occurred, would impact the safety of other tenants. These laws also require housing providers to consider other mitigating factors, such as recommendations from community members or participation in education, employment, or other programming.

B. HUD should extend its 2016 guidance to cover the use of eviction records, credit reports, and other unjustifiably discriminatory records to screen applicants for rental housing.

Landlord-tenant court records and credit reports also represent pervasive barriers to housing and reflect systemic patterns of discrimination. For example, housing providers evict Black tenants, and Black women in particular, at staggeringly disproportionate rates.²¹ The vast majority of eviction records do not represent a proven allegation of failure to pay rent or other lease violation. About three million evictions are filed in the U.S. each year, but few end in a judgment in favor of the landlord at trial. Cases often end in dismissals for lack of good cause to evict the tenant, or agreements in which the tenant stays and continues paying rent.²² Eviction filings also commonly result in default judgments because tenants lack the notice and/or resources to defend themselves.²³ Thus, much like arrest records, the vast majority of eviction records are not reliable indicators of tenant suitability or risk.²⁴ Yet, landlords often use the existence of any eviction record, including simple filings, as a reason to disqualify potential tenants.

HUD should clarify that any screening policy or practice based on eviction records, other civil court records, or credit reports must be demonstrably necessary and narrowly tailored to achieve a substantial, legitimate, nondiscriminatory interest. In revising its guidance, HUD should consider the growing number of jurisdictions that have adopted limits on the consideration of eviction records and credit reports in tenant screening.²⁵ For example, some policies prohibit housing providers from taking adverse action based on an eviction record that did not result in a judgment in favor of the plaintiff at trial; prohibit the denial of housing based on a credit score; and/or prohibit the consideration of credit history for applicants using rental assistance, such as vouchers.²⁶

C. The FTC and CFPB should publish updated guidance for tenant screening companies on complying with the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA).

The guidance²⁷ should elaborate on practices that constitute failure to reasonably assure accuracy under the FCRA, including but not limited to:

- Failing to verify the accuracy of public records matched to an applicant;²⁸
- Using unreliable or overly loose matching criteria, such as name-only searches, to match applicants with public records;
- Furnishing court records that do not include an accurate date and disposition (or incorporating such records into a score or recommendation); and
- Reporting sealed or expunged records.

D. The FTC should conduct a 6(b) investigation into the tenant screening industry to study how companies obtain, match, and report on information such as criminal records, eviction and other civil court records, and credit and financial information.

The study should also investigate how companies compile tenant screening reports and scores.²⁹ The Commission should seek to provide guidance on tenant screening practices that may be unfair or deceptive under Section 5 or that constitute unlawful discrimination. HUD, the FTC, and the CFPB should collaborate to ensure that the findings of this study support and are incorporated into HUD's guidance and enforcement activities.

4. Proactively enforce against discriminatory uses of technology and records in housing decisions.

A. HUD should use its authority to file formal complaints and initiate investigations and/or compliance actions where evidence of discrimination resulting from use of housing-related technologies is uncovered. This should include situations where there is evidence of unjustifiable use of criminal records, eviction filings and other civil court records, credit reports and other criteria that may have a discriminatory impact.

HUD should develop systems to ensure full and consistent compliance with, and implementation of, the recommendations set forth in this memorandum by its nationally administered programs in the Office of Housing (including the Federal Housing Administration), the Office of Public and Indian Housing, and other programs under ²⁸ See generally, e.g., Ariel Nelson, Nat'l Consumer Law Ctr., Broken Records Redux: How Errors by Criminal Background Check Companies Continue to Harm Consumers Seeking Jobs and Housing, Dec. 2019, <https://www.nclc.org/images/pdf/criminal-justice/report-broken-records-redux.pdf>.

²⁹ Section 6(b) of the Federal Trade Commission Act empowers the Commission to require an entity to file "annual or special . . . reports or answers in writing to specific questions" to provide information about the entity's "organization, business, conduct, practices, management, and relation to other corporations, partnerships, and individuals." 15 U.S.C. § 46(b).

HUD's authority. HUD should review guidance and other rules and policies issued by these offices and programs to ensure that they reflect a meaningful commitment to protecting against discrimination through background screening, online advertising practices, and other housing-related technologies.

The DOJ Housing and Enforcement Section should also use its authority to initiate investigations and file suit where evidence of discrimination resulting from use of housing-related technologies is uncovered. Similarly, this should include situations where there is evidence of unjustifiable use of criminal records, eviction filings and other civil court records, credit reports and other criteria that may have a discriminatory impact.

RE: Addressing Technology's Role in Financial Services Discrimination

Too often, technology amplifies and exacerbates racial, gender, disability, economic, and intersectional inequity in our society. Governments and corporations, at the national, state, and local level, are using computer software, statistical models, assessment instruments, and other tools to make important decisions in areas such as employment, health, credit, housing, immigration, and the criminal legal system. In light of these developments, policymakers must take steps to ensure non-discriminatory and equitable outcomes for all who participate in the financial services market.

We offer the following proposals for the Biden-Harris administration and federal financial regulators for addressing the ways that technology and data can lead to discrimination in consumer credit. We urge all agencies to engage with a diverse range of stakeholders, including civil rights organizations, consumer advocates, and impacted communities, in order to receive ongoing input and feedback on these important issues. We also encourage agencies to prioritize transparency, by sharing their data, models, decisions, and proposed solutions so that all of the stakeholders can stay apprised of and comment on the potential impact of proposed actions, and by requiring financial institutions to share with the public as much information as possible regarding their systems and assessments of those systems. We would be pleased to discuss the ideas in this memo in more detail in the weeks and months ahead.

1. The CFPB and other agencies should ensure robust measurement and remediation of discrimination.

Existing civil rights laws allow agencies to analyze fair lending risk and to engage in supervisory or enforcement actions concerning the use of new technologies. For example, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act (ECOA), as implemented by Regulation B, prohibits creditor practices that have discriminatory effects unless they meet a “legitimate business need that cannot reasonably be achieved as well by means that are less disparate in their impact.”¹ However, agencies must set clearer and more robust expectations concerning fair lending risk assessments as they pertain to technologies, and conduct in-depth reviews of financial institutions’ use of these technologies in order to more effectively supervise institutions and enforce civil rights laws.²

More specifically, agencies should develop policies that:

- Set updated standards for fair lending assessments, including discrimination testing and evaluation in the conception, design, implementation, and use of models; and for what information must be detailed in documentation of fair lending risk assessments, including what testing has been conducted, in-depth information regarding training data, and documentation of adverse action notices;

- Clarify that financial institutions' fair lending assessments should be conducted by independent actors within the institution or a third party;
- State that the agencies will conduct their own fair lending risk assessments, including a review of disparate impact, business justifications, and less discriminatory alternatives;
- Define "model risk" to include the risk of discriminatory or inequitable outcomes for consumers, rather than just the risk of financial loss to a financial institution; and
- Establish documentation and archiving requirements sufficient to ensure that financial institutions maintain the data, code, and information necessary for agencies to review their systems.

It is critical that all credit processes undergo scrutiny that includes analysis of actual outcome data, not just a model's inputs, training, or validation data. This is particularly important as lenders turn to more complex models that exhibit "black box" qualities — i.e., where the relationship between the model's inputs and outputs are opaque or not easily understood.³ This requires access to demographic data about protected groups, whether inferred indirectly or collected directly by the creditor.⁴ The Bureau should consider creating new datasets or methodologies for measuring disparate impact.⁵ This might include, for example, improving on the BISG methodology.⁶ The CFPB should consider new supervisory guidance for models, revisions to exam manuals, and commentary to Regulation B to achieve these goals.⁷

Agencies should also help develop industry practices for identifying and adopting underwriting processes with minimal adverse impact. This is an area of great potential, but with few established standards or practices. For example, using new modeling techniques, creditors can sometimes discover more equitable models without significant loss of overall model quality.⁸ Creditors should proactively explore these tradeoffs, and adopt alternative models to reduce adverse impact where feasible. The CFPB can lead the way on this issue by offering new guidance, leading workshops, encouraging the development of methodologies and techniques, and offering new policy guidance.

2. Agencies should encourage the use of alternative data for underwriting that is voluntarily provided by consumers and has a clear relationship to their ability to repay a loan.

All agencies should encourage the use of alternative data for credit underwriting where such data are voluntarily provided by consumers and have a clear relationship with those consumers' ability to repay. This might involve new research about the suitability of different kinds of alternative data, regulatory guidance, policy statements, or rulemakings.

Traditional credit history scores reflect immense racial disparities due to extensive historical and ongoing discrimination.⁹ Black and Latinx consumers are less likely to have credit scores in the first place, limiting their access to financial services.¹⁰ There is an obvious need for better, fairer, and more inclusive measures of creditworthiness.¹¹

New data sources can help. But caution is in order: Not all kinds of data will lead to more equitable outcomes, and some can even introduce their own new harms.¹² Fringe alternative data such as online searches, social media history, and colleges attended can easily become proxies for protected characteristics, may be prone to inaccuracies that are difficult or impossible for impacted people to fix, and may reflect long standing inequities. On the other hand, recent research indicates that more traditional alternative data such as cash flow data holds promise for helping borrowers who might otherwise face constraints on their ability to access credit.¹³ For example, a recent Interagency Statement observed that “[c]ash flow data are specific to the borrower and generally derived from reliable sources, such as bank account records, which may help ensure the data’s accuracy.

Consumers can expressly permit access to their cash flow data, which enhances transparency and consumers' control over the data."¹⁴

3. Agencies should clarify standards for Special Purpose Credit programs, which could help address legacies of discrimination and encourage creation of less discriminatory credit models.

Congress has provided for a range of credit programs that are “specifically designed to prefer members of economically disadvantaged classes” and “to increase access to the credit market by persons previously foreclosed from it.”¹⁵ These “Special Purpose Credit Programs” (SPCPs) allow the consideration of a prohibited basis such as race, national origin, or sex under particular circumstances, without violating ECOA’s general anti-discrimination mandates.¹⁶ SPCPs have the potential to help address legacies of discrimination, and can aid in the development of fairer financial technologies that explicitly consider protected class status.

We urge relevant federal agencies and departments to encourage use of SPCPs by clarifying standards and reducing risk of liability for lenders.¹⁷ The CFPB should take the lead in ensuring that its SPCP guidance under ECOA is consistent with the approach that other federal regulators, the Department of Justice, and the state attorneys general are taking in enforcing other fair lending laws.

4. The CFPB should issue new modernized guidance for financial services advertising.

For years, creditors have known that new digital advertising technologies, including a vast array of targeting techniques, might result in illegal discrimination.¹⁸ Moreover, recent empirical research has shown that advertising platforms themselves can introduce significant skews on the basis of race, gender, or other protected group status through the algorithms they use to determine delivery of advertisements — even when advertisers target their advertisements broadly.¹⁹ The Department of Housing and Urban Development has alleged such practices violate the Fair Housing Act.²⁰

The CFPB should issue new guidance on advertising and discrimination for creditors under Regulation B. Even as the Bureau clarifies what kinds of modern marketing practices might violate the ECOA, it should also expand on ways that creditors can affirmatively reach out to underserved populations.

5. The CFPB should revise and reincorporate the underwriting provisions of its 2017 payday lending rule.

Predatory lenders thrive online, targeting poor and vulnerable consumers — and especially people of color — wherever they live.²¹ In July of 2020, the CFPB rescinded the mandatory underwriting provisions of its payday lending rule, removing critical requirements that payday lenders verify borrowers' ability to repay. The CFPB should work quickly to reverse these misguided policy changes.

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Google cybersecurity leadership roundtable - next week

Evening Chris - quick ping - understand you are keynoting Google's security summit next week and wanted to invite you - schedule permitting - to join an off-the-record and in person roundtable that Google Cloud's CISO (Phil Venables) and Google Cloud's VP of Global Public Sector (Mike Daniels) are hosting IN PERSON this Monday, July 19th from 2:30 PM- 4:00PM ET at the W Hotel in Washington, D.C. for a select group of cyber leaders in government.

Not sure if you are in Michigan this coming week or in DC, but given it's just around the corner from OMB thought you might like to join. There is no preparation necessary in advance of the roundtable. Just an opportunity for a small group of cyber execs across various agencies to hear from the Google Cloud exec team on the current cyber priorities - off the record.

If you are interested - I can send over the details and a calendar hold with the location and room.

Know Google is very appreciative of you participating as a speaker in their Summit and hope you can consider.

Regards,

Caroline Boyd

Since we are not meeting today, I figured I'd send one more follow up here. I would like to get this scheduled so we can get this on everyone's calendar.

The executive team suggested that you choose your preferred venue for the selection event and whoever would like to "sponsor" the dinner can pick up the tab. AFFIRM can then reimburse the $800 that was approved with the budget to whomever picks up the tab.

Let me know which venue you would like and I will get it contracted.

Thank you and have a great weekend!

Hi Everyone,

I talked this over with our team internally and would strongly suggest you join us at our office in Alexandria. We could bring in catering and have flexibility to use the space until the award selection is complete, without paying rental or F&B minimums. We can bring in plenty of wine too!

Let me know if this is ok with you and I can get it scheduled.

All,

I just received revised pricing from Old Ebbitt and it will be a $2500 minimum now (they originally provided me the pricing for a lunch time event). In addition, there is a $150 rental fee, 10% tax, 2% service + gratuities. Total will be around $3,500. I think we should book with the Marriott Marquis or use a conference room.

Reminder - Marriott Marquis - $1,200 inclusive (15 people), only $400 over budget.

Let me know.

Hi Team,

I reached out to the Marquis for a quote to host our award selection dinner on Monday, September 13. The best they can offer is a 20% discount which comes down to $1,140 plus tax and service charge for 15 people ($89++/person).

The budget for this dinner is only $800. Do we want to look into hosting at someone's office and bring in restaurant catering?

Hi Caroline --

Sorry for the late response! Unfortunately, Chris has a prior engagement so he will be unable to attend. We greatly appreciate the offer!

Have a good weekend,
Drew Rodriguez

Hi Drew - wanted to circle at end of day and see if you and Chris had connected on the invite to join Google Cloud's CISO on Monday afternoon for a brief, off the record roundtable discussion? Know it is short notice, but wanted to check - very much appreciate your assistance.

Have a great weekend,
Caroline

Hi Everyone,

I don't know that we have a format that allows for a sprinkling of 10 minute sessions in each one hour block, I think if anything, we may want to have a dualing TED Talk during an hour long session. I do like the idea though so we can play with it.

As a FYI, I am on vacation this coming week. I'm trying to get one of our team members to attend on Tuesday, but I do not have a confirmation yet.

Thanks!

Kendall

Good morning!

I would love to see it laid out so that we can work through the timing for in-person and virtual attendees (as well as a/v logistics). Are you thinking that we would tack one of the “Oh the Places...” short talks to each of the 45 minute sessions and the other two would be combined with the 30 minute session? So it would like:

Session 1:

- “Navigating the New Normal: The Hybrid Toolkit for Cross-Agency Collaboration” This will be a 45-minute panel
- “Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action” #1 10 minutes

Session 2:

- “Empowering the Acquisition Workforce: Innovations in Acquisition” will also be a 45-minute panel.
- “Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action” #2 10 minutes

Session 3:

- “Leading across Generations and Personality Types” will be a 30-minute fireside chat or panel.
- “Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action” #3 10 minutes
- “Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action” #4 10 minutes

Is this along the lines of what you are thinking?

Subject: RE: ELC LT Planning Meeting

Good Morning and Happy Saturday Team! Thank you for the engaging and helpful discussion on Thursday. Per our meeting, I have an idea on how to include all of our sessions within the three hour time limit (hopefully that doesn't include any breaks). Our deck to all of the session descriptions is located here:

>https://drive.google.com/file/d/17eT96JOGVWA_QVuaYSyUC1gxzCWZMWqz/view?usp=sharing

As a reminder, here are the session topics:

1. Fostering Interagency Communication & Collaboration
2. Leading across Generations and Personality Types
3. Navigating the New Normal: The Hybrid Toolkit
4. Envisioning the Managing IT Destination we're Charting Towards with TBM
5. Empowering the Acquisition Workforce: Innovations in Acquisition
6. Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action

I combined 1 and 3. The new title will be "Navigating the New Normal: The Hybrid Toolkit for Cross-Agency Collaboration" This will be a 45-minute panel.

“Empowering the Acquisition Workforce: Innovations in Acquisition” will also be a 45-minute panel.

“Leading across Generations and Personality Types” will be a 30-minute fireside chat or panel.

“Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action” will be four 10-12 minute Ted Talks (or Fireside Chats) where agencies that are leading with way with new adventures in citizen services, AI, etc. will tell their stories. One of the stories will be a Ted Talk on TBM (“Envisioning the Managing IT Destination we’re Charting Towards with TBM”). This will be an hour session and will include three other agency innovation stories.

If this makes sense, I will update the deck accordingly. Let me know if you need to discuss or I should move forward with the plan above. Thanks again for your time, and I look forward to the next steps.

Regards,

Jessica

Subject: RE: ELC 27 Planning meeting

Good Morning and Happy Saturday Team! Thank you for the engaging and helpful discussion on Thursday. Per our meeting, I have an idea on how to include all of our sessions within the three hour time limit (hopefully that doesn't include any breaks). Our deck to all of the session descriptions is located here:

>https://drive.google.com/file/d/17eT96JOGVWA_QVuaYSyUC1gxzCWZMWqz/view?usp=sharing

As a reminder, here are the session topics:

1. Fostering Interagency Communication & Collaboration
2. Leading across Generations and Personality Types
3. Navigating the New Normal: The Hybrid Toolkit
4. Envisioning the Managing IT Destination we're Charting Towards with TBM
5. Empowering the Acquisition Workforce: Innovations in Acquisition
6. Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action

I combined 1 and 3. The new title will be "Navigating the New Normal: The Hybrid Toolkit for Cross-Agency Collaboration" This will be a 45-minute panel.

"Empowering the Acquisition Workforce: Innovations in Acquisition" will also be a 45-minute panel.

"Leading across Generations and Personality Types" will be a 30-minute fireside chat or panel.

"Oh, the Places You will Go: Innovation in Action" will be four 10-12 minute Ted Talks (or Fireside Chats) where agencies that are leading with way with new adventures in citizen services, AI, etc. will tell their stories. One of the stories will be a Ted Talk on TBM ("Envisioning the Managing IT Destination we're Charting Towards with TBM"). This will be an hour session and will include three other agency innovation stories.

Regards,
Jessica

And I totally get it on Delta - we are also recalibrating our interactions and mask wearing.

sure - would it make sense to kick this to after August 23 when I am back from vacation?

I do worry a little about whether the weather may actually be done by then. Not sure how far you live from La Paquette. I am about [REDACTED] so can also make a late call

Could we push to 6pm?

Perfect. We could do an afternoon coffee or early evening drink at La Piquette in Cathedral Commons

Or Millies.

Week of July 26?

Hey Michael, so sorry for my delay (as you know, the crush of email in this job can make it easy to miss something) – but yes, would love to meet in person to chat and learn more! Thank you for the offer.

Am very happy to meet up for an iced coffee or the like. I don't go into the office yet, so I am just hanging out in [Ex 6 - (5 U.S.C. Sec 552(b)(6))] every day, but am happy to meet up wherever is convenient for you.

In terms of timing, this week doesn't have any great afternoon options, but next week is pretty open so far. How are your Tuesday-Thursday of next week (7/20-7/22)?

Arpit - let me know if you want to find time to chat over the next 2-3 weeks.

Good luck with the exciting job.

Hello Arpit and Michael,

Michael, Arpit will be our new Executive Branch Liaison. Arpit is the Deputy General Counsel at OMB.

Arpit, Michael is the Director, Global Strategy & Innovation, Global Affairs at Google. During the Obama Administration Michael was the Associate Administrator of OIRA and the AdLaw Section's Executive Branch Liaison. Michael is currently serving on the section's Council.

Michael, Bridget Dooling introduced us to Arpit and suggested that he might benefit from getting the inside baseball on the role of the Executive Branch Liaison from you.

I hope you have a chance to chat.

Thanks,

Andrew
