Welcome to The Informant, our new monthly magazine offering curated news and exclusive content to supporters of the Informed Consent Action Network. We really wanted to provide something more to those supporters who give something more. The Informant features exclusive interviews, articles, and a breakdown of our most impactful work over the past month.

When The HighWire premiered in 2017, we imagined a news program where we could report on the important news ICAN was making, but we hadn't considered at the time that there would be too much news for us to cover in our weekly show. During production meetings, we are often faced with the difficult decision of cutting important stories simply because there is not enough time to cover every breaking story, and every action ICAN is taking. The Informant provides a platform to bring you those important stories, highlight ICAN's most significant actions, and direct your eye to informative content you may have missed in the previous month.

ICAN's legal footprint is vast, spanning thousands of FOIA requests, numerous lawsuits & petitions to regulatory agencies, in-depth investigations of important health issues facing the public, publication of white papers, and more.

Also, expect to find behind-the-scenes interviews with our CEO, Del Bigtree, a breakdown of things we aren't able to cover extensively on The HighWire, and other articles only available here, for you.

Part of what I think makes ICAN unique is our relationship with our supporters, who make all that we do possible. Our team really has a passion for providing information directly to the public, so they can make truly informed decisions for themselves and their families. We have all been on a journey together since our founding in 2016, and The Informant is another exciting path along that journey. I hope that you find it insightful, interesting and informative.

BREAKING: LAWSUIT FILED AGAINST ASTRAZENECA FOR MOTHER SERIOUSLY INJURED IN ITS COVID-19 VACCINE TRIAL

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

- Brianne Dressen, co-founder of REACT19, is suing AstraZeneca for breach of contract after suffering severe neurological harm during their U.S. COVID-19 vaccine trial.
- AstraZeneca's consent form promised to provide or cover the costs of medical treatment for research injuries.
- Despite being diagnosed with "Post Vaccine Neuropathy" by the NIH, AstraZeneca ignored Dressen's pleas for aid and refused necessary support.
- They offered her $1,243.30 in exchange for releasing the company from further financial responsibility, which she declined.

The attorneys that regularly represent ICAN filed a lawsuit against COVID-19 vaccine manufacturer AstraZeneca on behalf of Brianne ("Bri") Dressen, co-founder of REACT19, who suffered severe neurological harm while participating in AstraZeneca's U.S. COVID-19 vaccine clinical trial. AstraZeneca is being sued for breach of contract after callously ignoring Bri's pleas for aid. This is likely the first case of its kind.

Bri was a healthy and active 39-year-old wife, mother, and preschool teacher when she signed up for the AstraZeneca clinical trial and received her first dose of the company's COVID-19 vaccine on November 4, 2020. Shortly after her shot, she experienced tingling and prickling in her arms, blurred vision, headache, sound sensitivity, tinnitus, nausea, and vomiting. Bri's condition continued to worsen as time went on, baffling her doctors, and yet AstraZeneca refused to provide any information, medical referrals, medical care, or finances to assist with her treatment.

Bri was eventually diagnosed with "Post Vaccine Neuropathy" by none other than the National Institutes of Health (NIH). This post-vaccine neuropathy caused chronic inflammatory demyelinating polyneuropathy (CIDP), a condition which has caused constant, abnormal, and painful sensations with which Bri has suffered, including the feeling of being repeatedly and constantly electrocuted.

This leaves Bri in constant pain and has resulted in her inability to work or fully care for her children for the past three-and-a-half years.

As ICAN supporters well know, the PREP Act prevents vaccine recipients like Bri from suing COVID-19 vaccine manufacturers for their injuries. However, AstraZeneca's informed consent form, which Bri signed in order to participate in the trial, promised to "provide medical treatment or refer you for treatment" and "to cover the costs of research injuries." Despite this, AstraZeneca ignored numerous requests for support before finally offering Bri the laughable sum of $1,243.30—a minuscule fraction of the medical bills, lost wages, and other expenses that she and her family had incurred.

Worse, AstraZeneca conditioned its offer on Bri agreeing to release the company of all further financial responsibility for her care! Bri refused to accept this deal.

Fortunately, the attorneys that regularly represent ICAN have stepped in and filed a breach of contract suit to hold AstraZeneca accountable for the promises it made to Bri. They have requested a jury trial and look forward to holding AstraZeneca responsible.

Rest assured, ICAN will follow the case closely as the attorneys hold AstraZeneca's feet to the proverbial fire and demand justice for Bri!

ICAN'S ATTORNEYS SECURE EXEMPTION FOR AIR FORCE SERVICE MEMBERS' CHILDREN

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

- An Air Force couple's request for a religious exemption from vaccination for their children's on-base daycare was denied.
- ICAN works to ensure the Department of Defense respects service members' First Amendment rights and religious freedoms.
- With ICAN attorneys' help, they successfully appealed the decision within a week.

the Air Force understood their requirement to abide by Department of Defense policy and the Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA). Attorneys worked decision. Less than a week after it was submitted, their appeal was granted, and their children can now attend on-base daycare while having their religious remind the Department of Defense of its duty to respect the First Amendment and the rights of service members. As Department of Defense Instruction (DoDI) 1300.17 1.2. e. states "DoD Components will normally accommodate practices of a Service member based on sincerely held religious belief..."

Further, the RFRA requires the government to make these determinations using a case-by-case analysis, and not a generalized assessment.

When reminded of these regulations and laws by ICAN's attorneys, the Air Force reversed the denial. Every success is celebrated by ICAN, but it is especially gratifying when we are able to assist our United States military members and help defend their rights. And we hope the Department of Defense has learned that it cannot violate the religious freedoms of its service members with impunity.

Recently, a husband and wife who were both Air Force service members requested a religious exemption from vaccination for their children so that they could attend on-base daycare activities. The Air Force denied their request and one of their children was set to be kicked out of the center within a week.

After the service members reached out to ICAN attorneys, immediate action was taken to ensure that

DR. SHERRI TENPENNY | EP 370

Osteopath and pioneer in the vaccine safety movement, Sherri Tenpenny, DO, describes her two-year battle with the Ohio State Medical Board, which led to a temporary suspension of her medical license, after speaking on the dangers of the COVID-19 vaccines at a state health committee meeting.

WHAT TO KNOW

- Dr. Tenpenny received letters from the state medical board requesting a psych eval after speaking out about COVID-19 and vaccines.
- Her medical license was suspended due to state medical board actions, preventing her from practicing medicine.
- She emphasized the importance of providing vaccine-related information for fully informed decisions, clarifying that she never tells people not to vaccinate.
- Despite cooperating with the board, she faced potential fines and indefinite suspension. After preparing a writ of mandamus to prompt a board investigation, the state medical board eventually reversed its decision, unanimously reinstating her license.

In a shocking turn, mainstream voices who censored and suppressed conversation around vaccine injury have reversed course, even calling for a "9/11-style tribunal." Yet they're "limited hangout" falls short of full accountability or vindication for the injured. Del has a message for Chris Cuomo.

WHAT TO KNOW

- After years of denial and suppression, mainstream voices are now acknowledging vaccine injuries. A recent New York Times article highlighted thousands of vaccine injury claims.
- Former White House COVID Response Coordinator Ashish Jha admitted to past neglect of vaccine injury concerns and emphasized the need to listen to those affected by vaccines' effects.
- Chris Cuomo, previously supportive of vaccines, now advocates for a "9/11-style commission" for vaccine injury accountability.
- A Cleveland Clinic study shows the 2023-2024 COVID vaccine formulation may increase the risk of COVID-19 among vaccinated individuals.
